Selassie Closes Deal at Midnight

Fear of Italian Invasion Is Seen as Reason for Emperor's Action.

The Situation Abroad.

Emperor Haile Selassie deeded more than half of Ethiopia to Anglo-American interests.

One Italian soldier was killed and two wounded by shell fragments in maneuvers at Bolzano. Il Duce prepared an address to be delivered to the army today.

Britain, virtually admitting she could not prevent an Italo-Ethiopian war, forbade her subjects to serve with belligerent foreign nations.

By James A. Mills.

Addis Ababa, Aug. 30.—Francis M. Rickett, a British promoter, told this correspondent today that Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia, seeking to stop the expected Italian advance, deeded more than half his empire to Anglo-American interests for exploitation and development just before last midnight.

I, myself, saw the original charter, signed by the Emperor with his official title "Anointed King of Kings." Duplicate versions, one in English, the other in Amharic, carried the great imperial seal of the "Conquering Lion of Judah."

By this remarkable document, the sovereign turned over an area of 150,000 square miles (more than the combined areas of Indiana, Illinois and Iowa) to the Standard Oil Co. and British industrial interests under a 75-year charter. The charter authorizes its holders to exploit the oil and mineral resources and develop the country.

Nile Grant Considered.

Rickett said the Emperor also entered into negotiations looking toward the granting of a right in perpetuity to a corporation known as the Lake Tana Concervancy Syndicate which proposes to build a dam and pumping stations at Lake Tana, one of the sources of the Blue Nile, long a subject of international vigilance and jealousy.

The drawing up and signing of the charter was a dramatic incident, Rickett said. When the Emperor saw that negotiations for the settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian conflict had failed in Paris, with little hope of succeeding later at Geneva, he summoned Rickett from Egypt by telegraph. There ensued five days and nights of almost continuous discussions, so secret that the negotiator invariably entered and left the palace by a secret back door. Only a few Ethiopian officials and Everett Colson, the Emperor's American financial adviser, were in the know.

At midnight last night the Emperor was ready to sign his em-

NORMA TALMADGE.

Miss Talmadge Foils Kidnaper With Screams

Motion Picture Star Drives Intruder From Home by Own Fright.

By the Associated Press.

Hollywood, Aug. 30.—By screaming and slamming a door, Norma Talmadge today thwarted an apparent attempt to kidnap or rob the film actress in her fashionable Beverly Hills apartment.

The actress said a man carrying a small box knocked at the door shortly before noon. The caller told her maid, Matilda Shirk, he had brought flowers for "Mrs. Jessel." Miss Talmadge is the wife of George Jessel, actor and film writer.

When the maid started to admit him, the man assertedly whipped out an automatic pistol, jabbed it against the servant's side and ordered her to put up her hands and "don't say a word."

The servant screamed and Miss Talmadge said she had emerged from her bedroom to see the man with the pistol. She slammed the door and began screaming.

Dropping the box, the intruder fled. The box was picked up and found to be empty.

Sheriff's officers searched the neighborhood without results.

The actress described the man as dark complexioned, about 5 feet 9 inches tall, well dressed in a gray suit, silk shirt and dark Fedora hat.

"The operations will mark a turning point in army history," officials said.

C. & O. Canal 'Ferry' Tips; Two Drown

3 Companions Swim to Shore; 1 Victim Was D. C. Undertaker.

Rescue Attempt Fails When Man Grabs Other's Neck.

A man and a woman were drowned about 5 p. m. yesterday when a 12-foot skiff capsized as they and three others, all men, were ferrying the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal from the 4500 block of Canal road.

They were identified by survivors of the accident as Robert L. Donohue, about 55, of 2930 M street northwest, an undertaker, and Norma Sinclair, about 40, of the same address.

The woman's body came to the surface of the water shortly after the disaster a few hundred feet below the point from which the party embarked. She was taken to Georgetown Hospital in the hope that she might be revived. She was dead, however.

Others Swim Ashore.

Others in the party were Reginald De Koven Hereford, of 3288 N street northwest, and two Buffalo, N. Y., salesmen, Frank Greenan, 40, and George Howitt Allen, 44. They managed to swim ashore.

It appeared that the party had planned to cross the canal for a picnic. They had parked their car, bearing a New York license, on the roadside nearby. In the skiff, which failed to completely overturn, police found several bottles of liquor and a case of beer.

The skiff from which the man and woman met death is commonly used as a ferry across the canal. It is about 12 feet long. It normally accommodates two or three persons. Authorities investigating the tragedy said it obviously had been overloaded.

Planned to Visit Friends.

At the Seventh Precinct Station, police were piecing together an account of the accident from the survivors. Hereford, it was learned, while giving a Washington address, is also a resident of Buffalo, where he is in the contracting business.

The survivors said the five had planned to visit the Potomac River camp of friends and were crossing the canal to reach it when the skiff tipped.

At the police station Hereford told of his attempts to save Mrs. Sinclair's life. He said he had reached her in the water and was taking her to shore when Donohue, hysterical from fright and already drowning, clutched him by the neck.

According to the story told police, Donohue, who retired from the undertaking business here about three years ago, and Hereford met the Buffalo salesman in a Washington restaurant Thursday. It was said they were drinking and the party continued yesterday morning at Donohue's apartment above an undertaking establishment at the M street address.

It was decided then, according to the police story, that the party should spend last evening on the river. The survivors were being held at the precinct station pending completion of the police investigation.

Mrs. Sinclair was Donohue's housekeeper, police were told. She leaves a brother living here. Donohue is survived by a son, Robert L. Donohue, a clerk in the Department of Agriculture.

Court Suit to Increase Relief Lost by Couple

New York, Aug. 30 (AP).—The couple who sued the city for an increase in their home relief allowance lost their case today.

Supreme Court Justice Mitchell May, in Brooklyn, rejected without comment, the plea of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Nahoum that $60.05 a month was insufficient for themselves and their four children.

Mother Drowns Two Children, Says They Seemed Backward

By the Associated Press.

Appleton, Wis., Aug. 30.—A 33-year-old mother, apparently obsessed with the fear that her two small children were not developing normally, drowned them today in the Fox River.

Tucking James, 4, under her right arm and Carol, 14 months, under her left, Mrs. Leo Bartholmey waded into the stream until the water reached the children's faces.

For three hours she stood in the water, neck deep, clinging to the lifeless bodies until a rescue crew pulled her out.

District Attorney Samuel Sigman said the woman told him she feared for some time her babies were subnormal mentally and physically. Gradually she built a plan to drown them and herself, Sigman quoted her as saying.

Sigman said that under his questioning Mrs. Bartholmey told of arising at 5 a. m. today, dressing and feeding the children and leading them away from their comfortable little home.

They reached the river after a long walk. Carrying the infant and clutching James, Mrs. Bartholmey stepped in, walking steadily toward deep water. When James struggled, she started once to turn back but changed her mind, Sigman quoted her.

She went in deeper instead.

Sigman said the woman told him she planned to drown herself but then decided to wade back to shore.

"But I determined to face all the people," she told him.

A park caretaker said he saw someone standing in the river shortly after 6:30 a. m., but did not investigate, thinking the person was a swimmer.

A fisherman passed the woman about 8 a. m.

"Look what I did," Mrs. Bartholmey told him, he reported she said, indicating the children's bodies.

The fisherman hurried away to call the police. Mrs. Bartholmey remained in the river.

Patrolman Lester Van Roy and Frank Reck, a fisherman, reached her in a rowboat about 9:15 a. m. She was clinging to the children when pulled from the water.

Sigman said he planned to have Mrs. Bartholmey committed to the Winnebago State Hospital for observation.

New Tax Plan Put in Force By Roosevelt

Wealth Levies Cap New Revenue Program of Administration.

By Robert C. Albright.

The law-clinching flourish of the President's signature at 6 o'clock last night spread on the statute books the Administration's new tax law, estimated to raise $250,000,000 a year by high levies on business corporations, estates, gifts and incomes of the wealthy few.

Embodying new principles of taxation, and launching the Government on a new "tax-the-wealthy" policy, the law will reach into the profits of business enterprise, grade taxes on corporate income for the first time, and turn the bulk of the largest estates into Treasury revenue.

Caps New Tax Program.

The revenue measure capped a broad program of taxes enacted last session, ranging from re-enactment of $502,000,000 in nuisance levies, giving the force of statue law to processing taxes, and adding a wide sweep of pay roll and wage taxes to carry forward the social security program and the railroad retirement law.

Surtaxes on incomes will be stepped up to 31 per cent on earnings of between $50,000 and $56,000, graduating all the way up to 75 per cent of incomes over $5,000,000.

Estate taxes will be lifted to 2 per cent on the first $10,000 of an estate, after a $40,000 exemption and range up to 70 per cent on over $50,000,000. These will be paralleled by gift taxes about three-fourths as high.

Graduated Precedent Set.

The most striking variation from past tax principles is embodied in a new graduated corporation income tax. Heretofore a flat tax of 13¾ per cent has been imposed. Over emphatic protests by the United States Chamber of Commerce and other organized business groups, the graduation precedent was established first in the House, and later clinched in the finally enacted measure. The tax will range from 12½ per cent up to $2,000 of a company's income, to 15 per cent of over $40,000,000.

At the same time, excess profits taxes were raised to 6 per cent on profits of from 10 to 15 per cent, stepping up to 12 per cent on profits over that amount. Another $40,000,000 in annual revenue will be raised by increasing the capital stock tax from $1 to $1.40 per $1,000.

Body Blows to Business.

Business suffered another body blow in the new intercorporate dividend taxes imposed by the law. At the present time there is a 100 per cent exemption on dividend income received to one company from another. The revenue act of 1935 lowers this exemption to 90 per cent, subjecting intercorporate income to an average levy of 1½ per cent.

Embracing many of the "wealth-taxing" recommendations made to Congress by the President, Congress nevertheless departed from Mr. Roosevelt's suggestions at a number of pivotal points in the

A chair was nearby. Friends said Venuta had been despondent recently and was out of work.

Belgians Weep at Astrid Bier; Queen's Funeral Set Tuesday

Rites to Duplicate Ceremony Held for King Albert Just 18 Months Ago; Body Lies in State at Palace in Brussels.

By the Associated Press.

Brussels, Aug. 30.—Mourners from high and low stations, united by common grief for their dead Queen Astrid, filed sadly past a bed covered with white silk today for a final glimpse at her pale, bandaged face.

Upon the arrival of the body by special train from Switzerland, where the Queen was killed in an automobile wreck yesterday, the remains of the 29-year-old mother were placed in state in the royal palace.

The body lay in the black-draped "Thinkers Hall." There King Leopold, who escaped death when the car he was driving struck a tree, spent the morning before the public was admitted.

Funeral Set Tuesday.

The funeral will be held at 10:15 a. m. Tuesday. The ceremony will be the same as that with which Belgium honored its late King Albert, Astrid's father-in-law, who was killed 18 months ago while mountain climbing. There will be a processional from Sainte Gudula Cathedral to the royal crypt at Laeken, seven miles from Brussels.

The Queen's body was removed from the simple oak coffin in which it was brought from Lucerne and placed on a low bed with flowing white silk covers, strewn with violets.

Only the face was visible to visitors. The forehead and the right cheek were covered with bandages, giving her the appearance of a war nurse peacefully resting. Viewed from the left side, the features were extremely regular, touched by the same serenity which always had been Astrid's charm. Her folded hands rested on a cushion of violets.

Nuns Keep Vigil.

At the head of the bed an altar with a crucifix had been placed, while at the foot there was a smaller one. Black-robed nuns this evening took over the vigil in the hall which had been kept throughout the day by army officers.

Numbed by tragedy, Brussels, which just two days ago was filled with gayety and celebration attending the international exposition, was muted by a strange quiet.

From early morning, mourners, many of them weeping unashamedly, kept vigil at the palace. Thousands formed into a line which finally began a slow movement past the bier.

Before the public was admitted, the body was viewed by high government and military officials. The somber and impressive death certificate ceremony was performed in the presence of cabinet ministers, military officials and provincial and local leaders.

Crowds Weep.

Standing in the darkened room, lighted only by candles, the assemblage bowed in unison to the Queen's bandaged body and then adjourned to an adjoining hall, where Paul Soudan, minister of justice, read the text of the certificate. It was then signed by all those assembled.

Bugles shrilled "Aux Champs" (last post) over the muffled roll of drums when Astrid's body was removed from the special train at 8:40 a. m. upon its arrival from Lucerne. A hearse drove the coffin to the palace, through a sobbing, bareheaded crowd.

Leopold left the train before it arrived at the downtown station and drove to the palace in an automobile.

Headley Quits Force; Holmes Is Promoted

Retirement Fulfills Police Force Deal; Politics Denied by Hazen.

The "gentlemen's agreement," which rocked the police department a few months ago, was fulfilled yesterday when the District Commissioners retired Assistant Superintendent of Police Albert J. Headley and elevated Capt. William E. Holmes to the rank of inspector

Capt. Holmes, First Precinct commander, backed by a host of congressional friends, encountered only slight opposition from Capt. James E. Bobo, who made his bid for the job without congressional intercession with the Commissioners.

"There was no politics connected with the appointment," Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen said. "All of the candidates, with the exception of Capt. Bobo, had a number of indorsements from friends on Capitol Hill and business men."

Asked to make public the list of indorsements which supported Capt. Holmes and Capt. Maurice Collins, of the Seventh Precinct, Commissioner Hazen declined.

Convict Aiding Police Feared Killed by Gang

Denver, Aug. 30 (AP).—Detective Capt. James Childers said today a man whom his officers took to Kansas City two weeks ago to "put the fingre on gangsters" has disappeared and may have been "taken for a ride."

Childers said two detectives took Louis Rosen, whom he described as a former New York convict, to Kansas City to point out members of a gang that robbed Max Schwartz, Denver real estate man, of $29,000.

They reached Kansas City August 15, and Rosen agreed to meet the officers at a hotel the next day.

He failed to appear.

There were no charges against Rosen. His trip was voluntary.

Soft-Coal Bill, FACA Measure Become Laws

Roosevelt to Name Board Soon to Administer 'Little NRA.'

By Felix Bruner.

Two measures designed to replace part of the machinery junked by the Supreme Court NRA decision were signed yesterday by President Roosevelt. They are the Guffey bill, creating a "little NRA" for the bituminous coal industry, and the alcohol control bill.

The immediate result of the signing of the Guffey bill will be the resumption on September 5, of wage negotiations between the United Mine Workers of America and the mine operators. John L. Lewis, president of the miners' union, said that the new law has clarified the situation and that he anticipated a settlement of the dispute between workers and employers. The present mine union truce will expire September 16.

Alcohol control will be administered by a new agency to be known as the Federal Alcohol Administration, which is to be established as a division of the Treasury under an administrator to be appointed by the President.

Vetoes Expected.

President Roosevelt has been working until after midnight every night this week in an attempt to finish consideration of all bills enacted by Congress before leaving for Hyde Park tonight. Today he is expected to sign the neutrality bill, the TVA bill, the rivers and harbors bill, and either to sign or veto about 40 other measures. He indicated yesterday that a number of bills will be vetoed and that he has been busy dictating memoranda giving his reason for each veto.

A board to administer the Guffey bill will be appointed by September 15, President Roosevelt indicated. He said that, although ap-

Father Held After Gasoline Dashed on Bed Kills 2 Girls

By the Associated Press.

Miami, Fla., Aug. 30.—Gasoline dashed on bedroom flames today brought fatal burns to two of the three sleeping daughters of H. G. Denmark, 36, bakery salesman, and his detention by authorities for questioning.

Sobbing, Denmark was taken into custody for a second time at he left a hospital after watching his 13-year-old daughter, Dorothy, die of burns that earlier cost the life of 11-year-old Frances.

The third girl, Jewell, 9, suffered less serious burns. It was the diary of Dorothy that contained statements, Sheriff D. C. Coleman said, that brought Denmark's rearrest.

"She related," the sheriff said, "how she awakened one night recently to find gas streaming into the bedroom from an open jet. Turning it off, she pretended to sleep again, and soon, she wrote, the gas was hissing again."

But against that was the statement of the children to State Investigator John B. Rowland before the two died. Rowland said the girls declared they had the "best daddy in the world."

Denmark told the authorities he believed the fatal flames were caused by a lighted cigaret accidentally dropped into wearing apparel he cleaned last night with the gasoline.

Roused by the crackling of the flames, he ran to the kitchen for water, Rowland quoted him as saying. There was a dishpan containing liquid in the sink, and the contents of this he dashed on the bedroom flames.

Instead of water, the liquid was

Howard Wins Fast Air Race From Turner In Close Time

Chicago Mail Flier Ends Bendix Classic Less Than Minute Ahead.

2,046 Miles Flown In 8 Hrs. 33 Mins.

Start of Test in Los Angeles Marred as One Crashes to Death.

By the Associated Press.

Municipal Airport, Cleveland, Aug. 30.—Benjamin O. Howard, Chicago air-mail pilot, drove his white cabin plane "Mister Mulligan" through murky skies today to an apparent victory in the Bendix Trophy race from Burbank Union Air Terminal, Los Anegles, to Cleveland.

While Howard was nosing out Col. Roscoe Turner in flying time less than a minute better than his rival's, the body of Cecil Allen, young California pilot, was taken from his crumpled plane at the scene of the race start.

Neither Howard nor Turner knew that Allen, last to take-off, had died.

Howard flew the 2,046 miles in 8 hours 33 minutes and 16.3 seconds.

Record Flight Dropped.

He was the first of the field arriving at the national air races. He decided not to continue on to New York in an effort to set a new transcontinental record.

Turner, winner of the 1933 race, flashed across the finish line approximately two hours later and his time was computed as 8 hours, 33 minutes, 39.8 seconds. He, too, decided not to continue to New York in an attempt to break the transcontinental record he set a year ago.

In third place was Russell Thaw, a New Yorker, who made the long hop without stopping, for an official time of 10:06:45.08.

Roy Hunt, who arrived ahead of Thaw, was timed in 11:40:03.1 for fourth place. He spent nearly two hours in a Kansas pasture remedying a drop in oil pressure.

Amelia Earhart, who said on the takeoff she was flying "for the ride," was unreported for hours, and was the last to arrive.

Amelia Earhart Gets $500.

She made the trip in 13:47:06.35, race officials said.

First prize in the race is $4,500 and second is $2,500. Thaw will receive $1,500 and Hunt $1,000. Miss Earhart's prize is $500.

Howard was accompanied by Gordon Israel and Thaw's companion was Norton B. Moore.

Three other fliers were forced down in the famous trophy race, which offers $10,000 prize money for the dash from the West Coast to Cleveland and an additional $2,500 for a record-breaking transcontinental flight to New York. Royal Leonard was forced down at Wichita, Earl Ortman decided to remain in Kansas City and Mrs. Jacqueline Cochrane remained at Kingman, Ariz.

Rain Spoils Program.

Only a few hundred persons witnessed the arrivals of Howard and Turner in a rain which forced air race officials to cancel all other events for the opening day.

Howard's wife and Vincent Bendix, sponsor of the race, were on hand to greet him.

"Where's that man Roscoe?" shouted Howard as officials and spectators rushed up to his plane.

Turner asserted the weather was the worst he had encountered on any of his trips across the Nation. He said he was forced to fly at low altitudes most of the way and was unable to get the full power out of his motor.

Howard, who is 31, has been designing, building and flying planes for more than ten years, but seldom enters competitive events because of his regular job as an air-line pilot.

Seward Pulitzer, of New York, the tenth entry in the race, withdrew at the last minute.

By the Associated Press.

Los Angeles, Aug. 30.—The start of the Bendix transcontinental air race brought swift death today to Cecil A. Allen, tall California flier.

Cardinals Pressed By Pirates' Victory

Move to Within Six Games; Tigers Trounced.

The Pittsburgh Pirates, rising rapidly into the battle for the National League pennant, yesterday moved to within six games of the league-leading St. Louis Cardinals by scoring their second victory in a row over the world champions. The Pirates won, 9-3, for their ninth consecutive victory.

The Cardinal defeat enabled the second place New York Giants and third place Chicago Cubs to gain a half a game each without going to the ball park.

The standings:

	W.	L.	Pct.	G.B.
St. Louis	76	46	.623	...
New York	75	47	.615	1
Chicago	77	50	.606	1½
Pittsburgh	73	55	.570	6

The Pirates, driving to make a four-way battle out of the pennant race, have an opportunity during the next week to further their championship ambitions. Their nine-game streak includes three over the Giants and two over the Cardinals. They begin a two-game series with the Cubs tomorrow, take on the Cards for three at St. Louis beginning Monday and the Giants later in the week.

In the American League, the league-leading Detroit Tigers took an 8-to-7 drubbing from the lowly St. Louis Browns. Washington was not scheduled.

Budget Slash November Aim Of Roosevelt

President Grins at Story of 1939 Balance; Says 'I May Lose Job.'

By the Associated Press.

Although a presidential hmile dismissed questions about a balanced budget by 1939, arrangements were made yesterday for November conferences to seek a closer balance in 1936.

Mr. Roosevelt, at his press conference, accompanied his smile with a remark that he might not even be President in 1939. He had been asked about published reports that the Administration expected revenues to exceed appropriations in four years.

But Chairman Buchanan (Democrat), Texas, of the House Appropriations Committee, said he would retur nto the Capital November 18 to meet with budget writing officials.

Balance Sought.

Earlier Buchanan had asserted that "at the coming session appropriations must be materially reduced and, if possible, the budget balanced."

He would not venture an estimate of how large a reduction from this session's $10,073,370,543 appropriations could be expected when Congress reconvenes in January.

"I had hoped we could balance the budget," Buchanan said before leaving for his home, "but no one can ntell yet how much will be needed to get the new activities, like social security, under way."

The chairman predicted, however, that next year's funds for military purposes would be less than this year's record peacetime appropriation.

Figure Explained.

Buchanan explained that his figure for this year's appropriations included $500,000,000 allowed the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, but not the $380,000,000 made available from balances of previous authorizations.

He said subcommittees would be called to start hearings Dec. 2 on four of the big 1936 supply bills so they can be ready for House action. They are the Postoffice-Treasury, War, Interior and Agricultural bills, with the Independent Offices bill to be substituted in case one of the other subcommittees is unable to meet that soon.

Buchanan said he believed whatever relief load the Government has to carry next year should be financed from unexpended balances, payments on interest and the like "but not through new appropriations."

Big Slash Unlikely.

But, he cautioned, that does not mean the 1936 budget can be four or five billion dollars lower, because "if works projects are left 60 or 80 per cent completed out of the present four billion dollar allotment, why of course the only sensible thing will be to provide for finishing them when hey are worth while."

Buchanan showed in a compilation printed in the Congressional Record that after deducting amounts chargeable against specail receipts, plus the $4,880,000,000 rellef appropriation, total allowances for all other Government activities were $3,537,500,778.

Young Democrats Told To Avoid Byrd Censure

Lynchburg, Va., Aug. 30 (AP).—Delegates of the Lynchburg Young Democratic Club to the State convention in Richmond in September have been instructed to vote against any resolutions censuring Senator Harry Byrd for opposing New Deal measures.

Between You and Me

Government Spending Is Achilles Heel of New Deal; Poor Must Share Burden.

By Raymond Clapper

YOU can't tell with certainty a year ahead what the popular issue will be in 1936, but some have a hunch that it will turn on Administration spending.

Several recent developments have tended to awaken the public on this question and to stimulate a yearning for cutting expenses. Curiously the one which has had the most sobering effect was Mr. Roosevelt's move to tax great wealth. It is curious because the last thing Mr. Roosevelt had in mind probably was bringing the average man to the realization that the New Deal was going to cost him plenty in taxes.

It was a play to squeeze the rich and, since there are so many more poor people than rich people, it should theoretically have been highly popular. But it backfired unexpectedly. Because when the experts sat down and figured the yields from even the most hair-raising inheritance taxes, they could squeeze only a small drop of blood out of the old turnip. The Government could take it all and it would be only enough to run the New Deal a few days out of the year.

Instantly it dawned on the average fellow that if the rich man didn't have enough money to pay the bill, the average fellow would have to dig up. Also the specter of the tax collector was dangled by Senator La Follette who proposed—sending chills through the Administration—that tax inceases be shoved down into the lower brackets as well.

Also you have the heavy cost of the congressional session just closed. More than $10,000,000,000 was appropriated, double to three times the annual appropriations throughout the 1920's. This sum is to carry Mr. Roosevelt half way through his fourth year in office. It is as large, if not larger, than any other peace-time appropriation.

For some time in the early stages of the Roosevelt Administration, the public joined in the spending spirit. The country was desperate and ready to give anything a trial. Many economists believed that spending would produce recovery. Of course it will be debated throughout the ages whether the progress toward recovery made thus far was because of or regardless of Government expenditures. The economists will have to fight that out.

Politically, the important thing is whether the public thinks the expenditure was justifiable, everything considered, and whether it wants a pretty sharp halt called, and a switch from the philosophy of spending to that of trying to make both ends meet.

Another thing which has caused some jolt was the narrow escape from enactment by Congress of mandatory Government loans to peg the price of cotton at 12 cents and wheat at 90 cents. Bad enough in themselves, these two propositions, had they been approved, would have opened the doors for similar action next winter with regard to countless other commodities in an orgy of logrolling. That these measures passed the Senate and would unquestionably have gone through the House had leaders permitted a vote, brings many people to a startling realization of how Government subsidies whet the appetite for more.

Then, after all of the expenditures thus far, which have run the public debt to the highest point in its history, we still have a vast unemployment list, of either idle persons or persons supported by Government work funds. The National Industrial Conference Board estimates the unemployed for July at 10,015,000. Shrink these estimates and the total still must be gigantic, indicating really little progress in the vital end to which all recovery efforts should be directed.

A farm belt political reporter reports a change of sentiment away from Roosevelt and bases it in part on a growth of concern over Federal spending. After a tour of his State's back-road farms, he says: "This time a year ago the State was burned up; the farmers didn't think they had anything left. They were glad to take the allotment checks, etc., and still are for that matter. But with the improvement in crop conditions and finances, they feel that they have some property now and are viewing optimistically once more their prospects for owning more property, so the waste and the extravagant expenditures are shocking to them now as property owners.

"This does not apply only to the farmers, but to the small business men who were going along with the crowd who didn't feel they had any interest in the amount of money the Government was spending."

Now we have back-stage hands in both parties thinking about the issues.

One guess it not very much better than another yet, but it is possible that one or more of three basic questions will be dominant in the political discussion now warming up — the constitutional issue, the foreign situation, and expenditures.

The constitutional issue—taking it in the broadest aspect, is one that many Republicans hope to push. Mr. Roosevelt may succeed in backing away, in which case the discussion would be reduced to shadow-boxing.

No question is more important for the future than the matter of extending the power of the Federal Government to deal with social and economic problems on a national basis. But this issue so readily lends itself to misrepresentation, to appeal to blind prejudice, that a national campiagn waged on it would be in danger of being no more illuminating than the Scopes evolution trial and not nearly so entertaining. A lot of Republicans would say Mr. Roosevelt wanted to scrap the Constitution and make himself a dictator and a lot of people would believe it. The fight might result in much heat but little light.

Should Mussolini's "colonial campaign" against Ethiopia result in general trouble in Europe, domestic problems might be largely obscured, as they were in the 1916 election, in another argument as to the role the United States should play in foreign affairs. Roosevelt, being President and largely in control of foregin policies, would have the advantage if the international situation in the fall of 1936 should be acute.

On the spending issue, the opposition would strike directly at the sensitive pocket nerve, would be less easily foiled by Mr. Roosevelt. For although there are signs that he is aware of the possibilities in this direction and is preparing to take in sail considerably next winter, much of the damage already has been done. There it stands on the books in indelible red ink.

It is hardly worth more than footnote mention since it doesn't have much to do with campaign politics, but an attack on excessive Government expenditures also would be good statesmanship.

George Creel, an Administration intimate, called at the White House and then wrote an article for Colliers Weekly saying, with an air of official authority, that the Administration contemplated balancing the budget in the fiscal year 1938-39.

Newspaper correspondents asked Mr. Roosevelt if that was the Administration plan. The question was too easy.

Mr. Roosevelt simply looked at the ceiling and remarked that he didn't know who would be President in 1938.

Boy 'Nomads' Glad To Be Home Again

Three Washington boys who succumbed to wanderlust, and found strange thrills and sights in the streets of their native city, were back home last night—and glad of it.

The boys—Richard Anderson, 11, of the 1000 block of Fourth street northwest; Charles C. Thomas, 9, colored, of the 1500 block of Twelfth street, and Frank Evans, 10, of the 1600 block of Vermont avenue—were found by police early yesterday morning at Fifteenth and H streets northeast. They were taken to the Receiving Home, where they were claimed by their parents.

"We were sleeping anywhere we could find a place, and managing to find something to eat. It was fun, but we're glad to be home," one of the boys said.

Leslie Vanmeter, 12, of Rawlings, continues in a critical condition from a fractured skull suffered in an automobile collision August 22 near Rawlings. The car in which the boy was riding collided with one driven by Lester H. Barnard, Bloomington. Barnard is under $1,000 bond pending outcome of the boy's injuries.

Soft-Coal Bill, FACA Measure Become Laws

propriations for its maintenance died with the third deficiency appropriation bill, he believed money could be found to finance its work until Congress meets in January. He said he believed employes could be transferred from the Labor Department and possibly from NRA.

Under the provisions of the act, operators will be taxed 15 per cent of the value of their output. Those who conform with provisions of the new code to be set up will be refunded 90 per cent of the tax paid. The code is expected to cover prices, maximum hours, minimum wages and the right of collective bargaining. The country will be divided into districts and provisions made to meet conditions existing in each district. In ths respect the set-up will be not unlike that which existed under the NRA.

Court Test Planned.

Operators and miners have not been able to get together on a new tract since expiration of the old agreement last spring because of uncertain conditions in the industry. Lewis said he believed the new law would insure sufficient stability that operators could make wage commitments for the future.

At the same time, a large group of operators are laying plans to contest the constitutionality of the act. The question will be carried to the courts at the earliest possible moment and is expected to result in another important New Deal decision. Constitutionality of the measure was seriously questioned while it was being considered by committees of Congress, but President Roosevelt asked that it be enacted regardless.

Among the group who were present when the President signed the bill were Lewis, Senator Guffey (Democrat), Pennsylvania; Senator Barkley (Democrat), Kentucky, and Senator Neely (Democrat), West Virginia.

Choate May Retire.

With the Treasury taking over alcohol control, Joseph H. Choate, jr., head of the old FACA, is expected to retire. The FACA will continue as a research organization. Choate has repeatedly announced his intention to return to his private law practice. He has been in disagreement with Secretary Morgenthau over liquor taxes. Choate has been for low taxes to combat bootlegging and Morgenthau has been holding out for high levies.

Under the new law distillers, rectifiers, importers, wholesalers of liquor and wine makers will be licensed. The administrator may revoke a license for violation of rules. The new administration will have power to regulate bottling, labeling and advertising. A statement issued by the FACA warned liquor interests to give careful consideration to the times at which various provisions of the new law become effective.

Many of the most important provisions of the law will go into effect even before regulations are promulgated.

"Prohibitions relating to labeling and advertising and to the period of credit which may be extended are dependent upon regulations to be issued by the new administrator" the statement said. "These provisions do not become operative until such regulations have been issued.

Basic Permits.

"No basic permits are required until 60 days after the new administrator takes office. At that time all importers of distilled spirits, wine or malt beverages, and all distillers of distilled spirits, producers of wine, rectifiers or blenders of distilled spirits of winers, or bottlers or distilled spirits, or warehouse men and bottlers of distilled spirits must have obtained basic permits if they are to continue to engage in their respective businesses. Wholesalers of distilled spirits, wine or malt beverages are not required to have obtained basic permits until March 1, 1936. No basic permits are required for brewers."

U. S. Offered Loan.

In connection with consideration of bills, President Roosevelt continued to study the results of the failure of the third deficiency bill, talked to death by Huey Long. The President said that he still did not feel that money could be made available for financing the social security act further than organization of the administration to handle it. He appointed a board to administer the act last week.

President Roosevelt announced he had received an offer from the International Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers to lend the Government $1,000,000 to be used in administering the new railroad retirement act. The President expressed his appreciation of the offer, but explained to D. B. Robertson, president of the union, that the law forbade his acceptance of such a loan. The President said he believed preliminary arrangements could be made for administering the act pending the next session of Congress.

Roosevelt Signs New Tax Bill To Inaugurate Revenue Policy

enacted bill it sent to the White House.

Mr. Roosevelt, for example, asked for a steep tax on inheritances, and the House gave him that. The Senate, however, substituted estate taxes, and the House finally yielded.

While it is recognized, said Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, Finance Committee chairman, "that the inheritance tax, in a number of respects, is more equitable than the estate tax, nevertheless, the difficulties encountered in designing an inheritance tax even reasonably free from serious administrative difficulties are very numerous."

Business authorities pointed out at committee hearings the impracticability of administering an inheritance tax law of the type proposed, citing the forced liquidation of the vast Ford motor industry as one possible consequence.

Surtax Rates Increased.

Mr. Roosevelt's suggestions on individual surtaxes also were discarded. The President wanted to start surtax rates at $1,000,000, with a graduated scale that would hit only about 50 large fortunes. Instead, Congress followed the lead of the House, beginning surtaxes at $50,000.

This tax, however, is in addition to the normal 4 per cent income tax rate, in which no change was ordered. With the normal tax added, for example, an individual with a surtax net income of $100,000 will pay $2,000 more tax under the proposed rates than under existing law, while an individual with a surtax net income of $1,000,000 will pay $108,000 more tax.

Experts estimate this levy will affect only about four-tenths of all taxable returns filed, which now number an aggregate of 2,000,000.

Under the present law, the surtax graduation extends only up to $1,000,000, whereas the new schedule graduates up to $5,000,000.

Fruit Packers Use Cooler on Wheels

Truck Refrigerates Cars in Martinsburg.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, Md., Aug. 30.—A new development in fruit conditioning made its first appearance in this section this week—a motor truck, in reality a huge portable electric refrigerator which backs up to a car loaded with peaches or apples and in two hours "pre-cools" the car to below 50 degrees Fahrenheit.

The truck has been operating at Pennsylvania Railroad yards here where American Fruit Growers, Inc., is loading local crop of about 25 cars of peaches. The truck was brought here under contract with the A. F. G.

The pre-cooler looks something like a mounted threshing machine. It is mounted on a truck chassis, and cosists principally of a big water tank, for cooling; compressor pumps, operated direct from the truck motor, and cooling tanks, on the rear of the truck, containing hundreds of feet of coils. Methylchloride is the solution used.

Maryland Tax Receipts Take Drop in July

Retailers' Gross Totals at $344,637; New Low Mark.

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 30.—Receipts from the State's 1 per cent gross receipt tax collected during Julyfor relief and old-age pension revenue fell below the totals of the previous months since the tax became effective.

During July, 25,523 retailers paid in a total of $344,637.93 in gross receipt taxes. Payments for preceding months were: April, $348,719.90; May, $350,884.88; June, $348,019.68.

Although the gross receipt revenue dropped, the total emergency revenue for July, with the 1 per cent automobile titling tax added, was about the level for previous months.

During July, the automobile tax produced $43,264.83. This with the $344,637.93 from the gross receipt tax, set the month's total at $387,902.76. This is well over the $291,666.66 required for relief.

PICK UP FOLO IN TYPE

By the Associated Press.

With the Italian Army, Bolzano, Italy, Aug. 30.—Premier Mussolini's realistic war games proved just that today when one soldier was killed and two injured during maneuvers under real artillery fire with Il Duce and King Victor Emmanuel as spectators.

The soldiers were struck by fragments of a shell which exploded too near them as they charged up a hill under artillery fire. Mussolini immediately left the field to visit the injured men in a hospital.

One of the two injured soldiers was virtually blinded. When he was taken to a hospital doctors told him he probably would lose his sight.

"If that is the case," he replied, "I want to see Il Duce immediately, before I go blind."

Request Granted.

His wish was communicated to Mussolini. Instead of returning to Bolzano, where a pile of state business awaited him, the Premier drove to Merano and talked to the soldier, doing his best to console him. Il Duce urged doctors to do all they could for the man.

Projectiles whistled and groaned over the heads of the distinguished spectators as many of the troops were given their first taste of advancing under genuine fire.

Up the slopes of an opposite hill struggled attacking regiments of infantry until they reached the final ridge of a mountain. The shells struck in the heart of the theoretical defense and quickly gouged out "No Man's Land."

Accident Unseen.

The infantry was too far away for spectators to see the fatal accident.

The demonstration, with foreign military attaches looking on, was ordered to accustom Italy's soldiers to fire from their own big guns coming from behind.

The King, Il Duce and a group of high officers stood on a hill while cannon behind them and on their flanks shelled the summit of a mountain at a strategic point across the valley.

The last phase of the huge war games will be held tomorrow, a review of all the troops which participated in the maneuvers. Premier Mussolini will make a speech to his men.

There was much speculation as to the tenor of his remarks but no definite information was forthcoming.

Speech Unnecessary.

Best informed circles believed the recent cabinet communique, with complete statements on Italy's intentions, made a political speech by Il Duce tomorrow unnecessary. They expressed belief he would re-emphasize points in the cabinet declaration, especially upon military affairs.

He also was expected to congratulate the officers and troops upon their showing and to assure the country the maneuvers demonstrated Italy has nothing to fear from the Brenner frontier while she is engaged in Ethiopia.

London, Aug. 30 (U.P.).—Emperor Haile Selassie has granted important oil and mineral concessions in Ethiopia to an Anglo-American company with headquarters in London, the News-Chronicle will say tomorrow.

An official pronouncement of the concession will be announced Saturday, the newspaper reported.

The concession involves rights worth millions of dollars.

It grants authority to prospect for and exploit minerals, including oil.

The concession reportedly is located in Southern Harrar, near the Ogaden Desert.

Fire, Wedding And Sham Tilt Wind Up Camp

29th Division Returning Home Today After Busy Hours.

By Phil Austensen.

A Staff Correspondent.

Camp Reckord, Mount Gretna, Pa., Aug. 30.—A fire, a wedding and a battle marked the last active day of the Twenty-ninth Division encampment here today. The division breaks camp tomorrow for the return to home stations

The fire was in the tent of First Lieut. Arthur A. Callahan, Washington lawyer, postal officer for the division. Officers returning from a dance at the Officers' Club early this morning discovered Lieut. Callahan's tent in flames.

Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, commanding the division, and Col. John A. Cutchins, chief of staff, led the group of firefighters who kept the flames from spreading to adjacent tents of Lieut John Bayard Schindel, son of the late Brig. Gen. S. J. Bayard Schindel, U. S. A., and Lieut. John Cox Stanley, son of Judge O. W. Stanley, of the Kentucky Court of Appeals, both of Washington, and Capt Charles P. Bigger, of Richmond, Va.

Trunk Alone Saved.

The tent and its contents were a totel loss with the exception of a trunk which was pulled from the blazing tent with tent poles. Lieut. Callahan lost $600 worth of equipment and $40 in cash.

Lieut. Callahan had taken his wife from the dance to her hotel in Lebanon more than an hour before and did not learn of the fire until he returned.

Marriage Performed.

First Lieut. Arthur K. Strommen, of the 176the Field Artillery, Pittsburgh National Guard, and Miss Marguerite E. Walsh, of Pittsburgh, were married in the first camp wedding of the division.

The marriage was performed by Lieut. Col. Churchill Gibson, of Richmond, division chaplain, assisted by Capt. Richard H. Baker, chaplain of the 110th Field Artillery, with all of the officers of the 176th and a sprinkling of division staff officers as witnesses.

The couple stood before an improvised altar, a steamer trunk covered with an Army blanket, between the national and regimental colors in front of the tent of Col. William R. Dunlap, commanding the 176th.

Sham Battle Staged.

Commissioned and noncommissioned officers of the division today attended a sham battle staged by the Thirty-fourth Infantry, Regular Army, at Indiantown Gap. A barrage of service ammunition was laid ahead of the war-strength battalion by the Sixth Field Artillery, Regular Army, Fort Hoyle, Md.

The 900 men of the battalion moved into their positions with clock-like precision and advanced a short distance behind the exploding shells of the artillery. A chemical warfare demonstration was given in the afternoon.

Lieut. Col. Lindsay McD. Silvester, Regular Army instructor promoted from major general several days ago, was guest of honor at a dance tonight in the Officers Club.

Headley Quits Today; Holmes Is Promoted

Retirement Fulfills Police Force Deal; Politics Is Denied in Changes.

yet been agreed to by the Commissioners," he said.

In its report of crime conditions in the Capital, the House Crime Committee severely criticized congressional interference with police department promotions and suggested that all interference and indorsements by Congressional members be made public.

In retiring Inspector Headley, the Commissioners also abolished the rank of assistant superintendent of police, which carries an additional 500 compensation each year. This amounts to an additional $250 a year retirement pay.

It was this additional compensation which led to the "Gentlemen's agreement"between Superintendent of Police Ernest W. Brown, and Representative Thomas L. Blanton, Democrat, of Texas, which called for the retirement of Assistant SuperintendentT. R. Bean, so that Headley could get his post.

Bean Exposed Terms.

Bean refused to be eased out and disclosed the information of the agreement before the meetings of the House Crime Committee, which brought the retort from Blanton that he was being persecuted by newspapers.

Bean retired on July 1, and Headley took his post, after Representative Blanton had promised the Commissioners that he would retire on September 1. Headley offered his retirement application effective at "the will of the Commissioners." It was accepted, effective tomorrow.

Others Get Promotions.

Other promotions approved yesterday by the Commissioners are Lieut. Harvey Callahan, to captain t otake the place of Capt. Holmes; Sergt. Robert C. "Spirit of Right," was strewn over the sandy soil, a jumbled mass of wreckage. Allen's lifeless body was found pinned in the cramped cockpit.

Only two persons saw the tragedy. The plane, flying low through the morning mist, struck the field, rolled over and over ad was enveloped in a cloud of dust.

Prepared for Crash.

The 33-year-old flier had shut off the ignition, preventing a blaze.

Those who saw the crash, Fred and Glenn Van Winkle, said the plane swooped over a power line at high speed. Then the 550-horsepower Wasp motor cut out. The right wing dipped, scraped over everal hills of sweet potatoes and pulled the plane over on its nose.

Officials said Allen apparently never gained complete control of his craft after it careened crazily at the start, threatening to swing into part of the crowd of 10,000 persons who lined the flying field. On being righted it then bounced nito the air near the runway's end to fade into the fog.

As it was, Allen almost failed to start.

The plane, one of the trickiest pieces of flying machinery in the race because of its short, 18-foot fuselage, 20-foot wing spreda and 350 miles an hour top speed, had not handled well in trial spins.

Christian Grace Is Scientists' Topic

"Christ Jesus" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all the Churches of Christ, Scientist tomorrow. The golden text is from John 1:17: "The law was given by Moses, but grace and truth came by Jesus Christ."

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that I will raise unto David a righteous branch, and a king shall reign and prosper, and shall execute judgment and justice in the earth." (Jeremiah 23:5).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Throughout all generations both before and after the Christian era, the Christ, as the spiritual idea, the reflection of God, has come with some measure of power and grace to all prepared to receive Christ, Truth," (Page 333).

On The Air Today

This epistle from one Charles N. French arrived yesterday:

"The Post has a very dull editor of radio news. He says he was unaware the funeral services for Will Rogers were broadcast over the country. And yet New York papers announced beforehand that the networks would carry the services one hour. Both funerals for Wiley Post and Will Rogers were broadcast over radio everywhere except Washington, D. C.

"And the public wanted to hear them here. And could but for our sap radio managers who do not keep up with public sentiment. Is Washington a hick town?"

* * * * *

In order that the records may be clear, the services were carried by KNX, Los Angeles; WCAE, Pittsburgh; WLW, Cincinnati; WGN, Chicago; WOR, Newark, and stations of the Yankee network, up in New England. The Mutual network, with which these few stations are affiliated, paid a big price for the telephone service.

A dispatch covering the plans for the funeral ceremonies, in the morning papers of that date, carried the statement that radio networks would broadcast the service for Will Rogers.

All day long listeners phoned The Post inquiring about the broadcast. Both Columbia and NBC offices in Washington explained that neither network would carry the service. For that very good reason, all persons who phoned The Post were told the service would not be on the air unless some arrangement was made at the last minute.

* * * * *

The stations listed above are the only ones which broadcast the service. Radio authorities in New York City advise that only the service for Rogers was on the air.

Since no broadcasting station in Washington is connected with the Mutual network (with which the above stations are affiliated), no Washington station was in a position to carry the service. So far as my correspondent's statement that the service was available "everywhere except Washington," it is only fair to state in behalf of Washington's "sap radio managers" that stations in Philadelphia, Baltimore, Cleveland, Detroit, Richmond, Atlanta, St. Louis, New Orleans and several scores of other cities likewise did not broadcast the service, for the reason there was no service available to them to broadcast.

* * * * *

It has been my observation that the managements of both Columbia and NBC in Washington are unusually alert to anything identified with "good radio." Washington is the second city in the country from which network programs originate.

It is regrettable that they must be charged with stupidity for not broadcasting something which was not available. For example, a Washington station might have burned the wires to Los Angeles pleading for the Rogers service—but if the telephone lines were not made available by network headquarters, it would not be possible to broadcast the service.

Uncle Arthur Godfrey celebrates his birth anniversary today. And Godfrey fans are sending everything from greetings to garlic. And may I take this opportunity to express my deepest sympathy to Arch McDonald, whose father died Tuesday. Arch will be off the air for several days.

Don Bestor will be present Sunday morning at 10 when Gordon Hittenmark presents a half-hour of Bestor recordings in his new Sunday morning program . . . and starting next Tuesday, Gordon will begin his timekeeping at 6:30 instead of 7. Which sounds very, very early in the morning to me . . . WJSV will sprinkle mikes all over the Press Club auditorium tonight at 10:15 for the broadcast of a part of "East Lynne" by the Willard Players.

Medical Society to Honor Dr. Dorsey's Memory

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 30.—The Washington County Medical Society will honor the memory of a pioneer in the field of medicine, Dr. Frederick Dorsey, who practiced here from 1801-1860 and, because of his services, was asked in 1856 by the city to sit for a portrait.

Descendants of Dr. Dorsey presented the painting to the Medical Society, which had it restored by Tom Conner, noted Baltimore painter. The restored painting will be hung over the rostrum in the permanent home of the Medical Society in the new wing of the Washington County Hospital. The room has been named Dorsey Hall.

By Morgan Baker.

PAY increases totaling $279,226 will become effective September 1 for a large number of Navy Department employes under Group IV-b classification, which was completed yesterday, it was announced at the department yesterday afternoon.

BAKER.

Under the final classification, 53.3 per cent of the 7,819 employes concerned are unchanged in grade and pay; 17.6 per cent are classified in a higher grade, with increase of pay; 19 per cent are classified in higher grades without increase in pay; 5.6 per cent are classified in lower grades without cuts in pay, and only 1.5 per cent are reduced in both grade and pay.

The new classification means an average increase in pay of $35 a year for all employes in the clerical group, $21 for all custodial employes, $67 for those in the professional group, $14 for subprofessional employes, and an average of $35 for all services. Inasmuch as only 17.6 per cent were increased in pay, this would mean an average raise of about $200 for those who were increased.

The aggregate departmental pay roll is increased from $16,229,180 to $16,508,400.

This classification has been a major item in the program of the American Federation of Government Employes, and E. Claude Babcock, president, has urged its completion at the earliest possible date. Group IV-b includes groups of Navy field employes. Workers at the Washington Navy Yard are regarded as field employes, and a considerable number of these are included in Group IV-b.

The AFGE has strongly urged classification for all field workers, to eliminate inequities. Where salaries are not fixed in accordance with some definite plan of classification, experience has shown that often two employes doing the same type of work receive widely varying rates of pay.

Harlow H. Hall, Bureau of Chemistry and Soils, has returned from a three-week field trip in the Carolinas.

APPOINTMENT of Dr. Charles E. Kellogg as principal soil scientist and chief of Soil Survey Division, Bureau of Chemistry and Soils, was anounced yesterday at Agriculture. He succeeds Dr. Curtis F. Marbut, who died on August 25, at Harbin, Manchuria.

Before coming to the department, Dr. Kellogg was professor of soils at North Dakota Agricultural College, where he developed the method of land classification, which was the first to be used as a guide to county taxation of farm land.

Following the distinguished career of Dr. Marbut, who developed the method of soil classification which has been used by the Soil Survey in mapping more than half the agricultural lands of America and in establishing an inventory of soil fertility resources, Dr. Kellogg is called upon to direct the most extensive program of soil survey and land classification which his division has yet been asked to carry out. The program includes important work in co-operation with such agencies as the TVA and the AAA.

J. Allen Clark (C), and Burton B. Bayleh (C), Division of Cereal Crops and Disease, Bureau of Plant Industry, are the authors of a 164-page book on "Classification of Wheat Varieties Grown in the United States." It contains 46 plates illustrating the various kinds of wheat and about 60 distribution maps. It is published by the Department of Agriculture.

Since 1918 Mr. Joers has been with the Coast and Geodetic Survey and later with the Navy Department. Today is his last day at the Nautical Almanac Office, as he will take tomorrow on leave.

A Treasury Failure.

The failure of the Treasury to complete the sale of its offering of $100,000,000 of four-year guaranteed Farm Mortgage 1½ per cent bonds is significant.

The significance is not lessened by realization that the whole banking and credit organization of the Nation is under special pressure to co-operate with the Treasury in making Government offerings a success. As far as can be judged from the outside, the explanation is simply that the Treasury has been operating under a policy of highly artificial interest rates. Money at 1½ per cent for four years has never existed in previous periods in this country or in any other country.

The incident is the more interesting because of its favorable side. Here is an implied warning that, in spite of huge excess reserves in banks, there are limits to the price at which money will engage itself to work for long-term and intermediate periods. The excess reserves can make money work for practically nothing, as it now is doing, for the very short maturities. But the instability of the currency program causes bankers to stop, look and listen before they tie up their money at 1¼ per cent for a period of four years.

Low money rates with liberal credit policies have their value in helping recovery from depression, but other things are required—and one of them is confidence in the future. Unfortunately, there has been much stimulation from excess reserves, but mighty little stimulation from increased confidence. The latter, as well as the former, is necessary to bring about any real recovery.

No Sign Of Balance.

Current talk of balancing the budget is especially timely in view of the fact that the session of Congress which ended this week appropriated more than $10,000,000,000. Even those legislators who sponsored this gigantic spending program realize that the policy can not be long continued without destroying the Government's credit. Reports that Secretary Morgenthau has taken a similar attitude, and that the President has a definite plan to equalize income and expenditures in the fiscal year 1939, are therefore welcome.

A great deal more than talk will be required, however, to end the series of deficits which has been running since 1931. The demand for a balanced budget became emphatic about four years ago. Congress passed what was then regarded as the drastic revenue act of 1932, with the intention of restoring the Treasury's equilibrium. But the next fiscal year ended with a deficit of more than $1,200,000,000.

One of President Roosevelt's first messages to Congress gave "assurance" that if requested economies were forthcoming, "there is reasonable prospect that within a year the income of the Government will be sufficient to cover the expenditures of the Government." Most of the economies sought were put into effect temporarily. But at the end of a year a new deficit had mounted to $3,630,000,000.

Each year balancing of the Federal budget has been visualized in the near future. Yet deficits have continued to grow. Obviously a plan to match expenditures with revenue three years hence will mean nothing unless the President and Congress are willing to adjust their ambitious undertakings to the Government's income. Thus far no such disposition has been manifested. In ascribing a three-year economy program to the President, George Creel nevertheless points out that this year's deficit is estimated at $3,892,000,000. A most emphatic reversal of present policies would be essential to put the Treasury on even keel in the fiscal year 1939.

While officials are generalizing on the budget situation, groups of veterans are rallying their forces for a renewal of the bonus raid. Right of way for a cash-payment bill requiring an outlay of at least $3,000,000,000 has already been promised by congressional leaders. That measure would of course upset any plan of retrenchment. Moreover, if the Administration should yield to the bonus lobby, numerous other demands for special outlays would be pressed. Having acquired the spending habit over several years of depression, Congress will not be easily converted to economy on the eve of a general election.

These obstacles to a balanced budget are formidable, but they must be courageously faced. The alternative—continuing to talk economy while adding billions of dollars to the public debt each year—is to run blindfold along the road to disaster. And, incidentally, the spending program is the foremost wedge which some politicians are trying to drive through the Democratic party.

This Isn't 1914.

One general opinion in this country with regard to the threatened outbreak of hostilities in East Africa is that an Italo-Ethiopian war could not be localized. This is probably a correct assumption, provided the subjects of Haile Selassie put up the stubborn resistance which Italy obviously anticipates. The interests at stake are too great, and the political instability of Central Europe too pronounced, to encourage hopes that a protracted upheavel in Ethiopia would be nothing more than another minor colonial war.

Another general American opinion is that if Mussolini starts a conflagration, and it spreads beyond the bounds of Ethiopia, the United States at least can be assured of immunity from its effects. On that belief is based the mandatory neutrality resolution rushed through Congress just before its close. It is reasoned that we shall be able to maintain neutrality if we promptly proclaim neutrality and apply an embargo on what the President is left free to define as "implements of war."

Soothing though this reasoning is, its validity remains open to serious doubt. And a chief reason for doubt is the fallacy of the basic assumption that another European war would be similar to the last. All Senate debate on the subject took this assumption for granted. It was argued that neutrality could be better safeguarded if an embargo were made to apply to loans and credits of any kind to belligerents. But it was not suggested that another European war might easily bring consequences against which no kind of embargo could be effective.

Yet any realistic consideration of the situation in Europe must visualize such an outcome. The very factors of insecurity which make another world war possible also go far to insure that it would be very different from the last war. The likelihood of economic and financial breakdown is now immeasurably greater; the chances of rebellion in the armed forces and revolutionary outbreaks in the industrial centers are much stronger. These dangers were perceptible in every belligerent European nation in 1917 and 1918. In another war they would be apparent not toward the end, but almost from the beginning, of hostilities. Dictatorial controls suppress, but do not eliminate, widespread popular discontents.

That situation, of course, explains why Russian policy is swinging back to the promotion of world revolution, which was temporarily abandoned when Trotzky was ousted. For some years emphasis concentrated on the domestic regeneration of the first Communist state and development of normal relations with capitalist powers. Nothing could be more significant than the fact that the Soviet regime, as it has just demonstrated, is now willing to terminate diplomatic relations with this country rather than abandon sponsorship of the revolutionary activities of the Comintern. Apparently it is recognition of the brighter prospects for communism which war would bring that has caused Moscow to resume the old emphasis on subterranean propaganda.

If the Russian leaders are right in their estimate that the chances for Communist risings in Europe are improving, the inadequacy of present American policy is obvious. We may be neutral in any European conflict which has territorial changes as its objective. But in a conflict which might easily come to threaten the very foundations of our own economic system the word neutrality would have no meaning. The most elementary statesmanship, if such a danger is even faintly possible, would demand co-operative action to make the outbreak of war less probable. And our contribution in this direction has so far been rather less than negligible.

The President has so far refrained from signing the mandatory neutrality resolution. It may be hoped that one reason for this delay is a growing realization of its complete futility as the basis for intelligent policy in a world which has so greatly changed since 1914.

Junket With A Moral.

Senators Wheeler and Nye are evidently not really lacking in sympathy for the coupon clipper. Having just been freed from a session of Congress where they did their bit for the enactment of appropriation bills totaling more than 10 billion dollars, they have proceeded immediately to Cuba. There, in lay capacity, they are trying to expedite interest payments on a $40,000,000 loan, the bonds for which are held largely by American investors.

There is one slight difference, however, to be noted. Whereas in Washington the Senators were encouraging Americans to spend, in Havana they are trying to persuade the Cubans to pay. The loan was originally advanced by the Chase National Bank of New York in the salad days of the Machado regime, when Cuba went on a spending spree almost comparable to that in which this country is now indulging. The bank was later successful in disposing of a large part of the bonds to the American public. Since then interest payments have been conspicuous by their absence.

There will not be the slightest objection when investors seek to protect their own interests. But it is a trifle ironical when two Senators noted for their dislike of plutocracy undertake to use their influence to wring blood from the turnip that is present-day Cuba. Of course the Senators are only window-dressing for a New York bondholders committee. But if they learn that it is easier for a government to spend riotously than to foot the bills painfully, their junket may be worth-while.

An Inefficient Army?

From Pine Camp, N. Y., headquarters of the First Army of the United States during summer maneuvers, have come steady reports—each successively gloomier—describing that segment of the Nation's war machinery as antiquated and ineffective. "Startling" deficiencies in equipment and officer personnel have been noted. Only five of the available tanks were modern, it is reported. There was insufficient blank ammunition to stage a proper mock battle. Inadequate motor transportation facilities forced the troops to move in civilian trucks and taxicabs. The new air bombers have already been found obsolete. Communication equipment has proven outdated and inefficient. And so on.

Yet last April the President signed a bill appropriating for the War Department sums totaling $401,998,170, which was $22,756,927 in excess of budget estimates and $85,769,179 more than the appropriation for the preceding year. The figures do not include funds for river and harbor maintenance, for operation of the Panama Canal or for flood control. Neither do they include relief funds made available to the Army for various purposes.

If the Army is really antiquated and ineffective with such vast sums at its disposal some sharp questions are in order. Admittedly, the enlisted strength has been ordered increased from 118,750 to 165,000 men. And the current appropriation provides for the enlargement of the National Guard, extension of the training period for reserve officers and expansion of citizens' military training camps. But generous allowance was also made for improvement of fixed defenses, new military supplies and development of aircraft. What result is the country getting for these millions?

When the military services were kept on a starvation basis reports of their inefficiency were generally preliminary to requests for larger appropriations. Now huge sums have been freely granted and still the same criticism of incapacity arises. The inevitable inference of the civilian taxpayer will be that what the Army needs is not more money, but more efficiency. One does not need to look far to find cases in which extravagant governmental expenditure has merely encouraged incompetence.

A Perfect Dilemma.

The statement that truth is stranger than fiction became trite long ago. Less frequently realized is the fact that truth may be, and frequently is, more terrible than fiction. Yet this conclusion must come poignantly home to everybody hearing of that unhappy wretch who, on G street last Thursday, mistook Louis Berkoff's sample-case for a simple suit case and carried it off without dreaming that it contained calcium cyanide—one whiff of which, Mr. Berkoff warns the world, would make the whiffer "a goner."

There is the ancient Arabian story of the innocent person saddled with the body of a man who had been murdered. But what is his plight compared to that of some not at all murderously minded pilferer saddled with a poison capable of slaying a thousand persons? There was the fellow in Robert Louis Stevenson's "Dynamiter" who innocently left behind him an infernal machine which might at any moment kill women and children in a London park. But what were his feelings compared to those of this poor parcel-lifter who now—if he reads the newspapers—learns that his ill-gotten gains may kill himself?

If he reads the newspapers. Of course, if he has not read them before opening his treasure-trove, he will not read them now. In such case, this male Pandora has nothing left on earth to worry about—for he is no longer on earth.

But consider the moral dilemma of this thief if he does read the newspapers in time. If he abandons the box, he endangers the existence of its finder. If he keeps it, it may spring a leak. And if he turns it over to the authorities, he risks arrest for a felony.

His case is nearly as hopeless as that of the housebreaker who makes away with a collection of used razor blades.

We may be climbing out of the depression after all. More than 150 monkeys got loose on Long Island the other day, and we can remember the time when a thing like that would have been made into an ERA project. —Boston Transcript.

Is Roosevelt Inviting Defeat?

From the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Is it true that Roosevelt is inviting defeat? And if so, what is to become of the overwhelming Democratic majorities in House and Senate? Such questions have been most disturbing. These majorities were swept in on a wave of Roosevelt enthusiasm. He had led the people up to the mountain top and showed them the promised land.

Yet it is obvious that the closing days of this session of Congress have created misgivings in many minds. Confidence has been waning. Are the people back home going to swallow everything that has been handed them in the Democratic name or in the name of Roosevelt himself? Senators and Representatives are about to find out. In Washington they are under the influence of the Administration's leaders. They do not come in direct contact with their constituents. Now they will have the opportunity of sounding sentiment among the home folks.

Protests Vaccination.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

I called at the Children's Bureau recently to procure a booklet on "Infant Care" for a prospective mother. I was most amazed to read in this booklet the following: "Every baby should be vaccinated against smallpox before he is 12 months old. This should be done whether there is any smallpox in the community or not, as the disease may break out when least expected." And this: "Every baby should be immunized against diphtheria when he is six months old or as soon afterward as possible."

The young woman I wanted the booklet for is not ignorant or foolish enough to take such advice as that!

The registrar general's mortality figures for England and Wales, which I have before me from a London paper, state that during the 20 years ended December, 1934, 107 children, under 5, died of smallpox, while 273 died of vaccination! Sir William Collins, M. D., M. P., once public vaccinator of London, said that: "In some of the small local outbreaks of smallpox, only vaccinated persons had been attacked."

Are the Children's Bureau officials ignorant of such information? Are they ignorant of the fact that among our revaccinated men in the Army of the Philippines there occurred in 1900 246 cases of smallpox with 113 deaths, and in four years ended 1901 there were 674 cases with 249 deaths? In the face of such facts what can we think of the people who advise the blood-poisoning of babies before a year old?

Only nine States require vaccination by any State law. In Massachusetts there are only 920,000 "protected" out of 4,000,000, and when did you ever hear of a smallpox epidemic in that State?

Let medical frauds be free to those who want them. The history of medicine is too crammed with deadly mistakes to make anything compulsory—even in Russia!

Excessive Profits Required By Law.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

The correct concept of the economic significance of a processing tax is dawning on the business world, a concept that should be widely understood throughout the country. This concept is that the AAA, as passed, is a legislative demand for excessive profits upon the industries which are required to pay a processing tax. The Government, of course, expects to take these excess profits away from the processors and pay most of the amounts so realized to the farmers who sign up to receive benefits.

It is true that many persons believe that a processing tax is but an added item of cost to be passed on to the consumer, but, no matter by what words the processing tax is described, the fact remains that it must be paid out of profits.

A manufacturer incurs a liability to pay to the Government, for example, $2.25 per 100 pounds of live hogs the moment he purchases the animals for slaughter, and should he lose the dressed animals through fire or spoilage, he is still liable for the tax. A pork packer's margin of profit must be great enough to bring him a net profit equivalent to $2.25 per hundredweight of live hogs if he expects to break even on his operations. And if he is to earn any profit for himself, his margin must be still greater.

It happens that most meat packers in average times make a profit that is very much smaller than that. A net profit of one-quarter or one-third of the amount demanded by the Government is often considered a handsome profit.

Industrialists are not philanthropists. Meat packers are no more philanthropic than any other type of manufacturer, every one of whom is trying to make every cent he can out of his business. Yet despite the fact that most meat packers are doing their utmost to make profits for themselves—and making rather modest profits at best—the AAA demands that those who are already doing their utmost shall increase their profits many times over.

When the AAA was first enacted the packers were fairly successful in increasing their profit margins by the requisite figure. It was done, not by selling the meat products for higher figures, for that is impossible, but by lowering the purchase price of live animals by the amount of the processing tax. It should be remembered, too, that hogs were very plentiful then.

Then came the AAA hog slaughter campaign to reduce numbers. And also there came the drought of 1934 that resulted in still further slaughter to salvage animals in areas where feed was impossible to obtain. Today plants that once killed 2,000 or 3,000 hogs a day are operating their killing departments only two days a week and the number of hogs available will run between 200 and 500 animals. Such a reduced operating schedule increases the operating costs to a scandalous figure and almost any packer will tell you he is losing considerably above $1 for every hog dressed in his plant. Yet if he is to stay in the packing business he must have meat for sale. But the Government demands its processing tax. It requires him to produce a large profit when he finds it almost impossible to produce any profit.

When the tax was new and hogs were plentiful the packers could earn the excessive profit demanded by lowering the price bid on live animals. But as the months passed by the effect of competition in all its manifold ramifications has wiped out this possibility of earning an excessive profit. The consumer cannot be compelled to pay higher prices. There is absolutely no way on earth to make people buy. But the law says that the tax must be paid.

Business makes all the profits it knows how to make. A legal demand for more and more profits will not create the profits, neither will it develop the ability to create them. Herein lies the weakness of financing the whole AAA program. And although the case cited is one dealing with hogs the same reasoning applies to other "basic" commodities. The difference is to be found in the time required for it to reach an equilibrium and to become as apparent as it has in the case of pork.

AAA and the method of financing State control of agriculture, irrespective of its unconstitutionality, will probably collapse of its own weight because it is an economic impossibility. L. V. BURTON.

"Going To The Dogs."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Just a few lines in reference to the President's speech of August 24 and his little poem entitled, "Going to the Dogs."

As a result of my interpretation of this particular section of his speech, I gather that he wishes to point out that there have been critics from the beginning of time to date, who have on various occasions prophesied that "things were going to the dogs," but that "the dogs have had an awful wait." In other words, Mr. Roosevelt clearly attempted to convey to his listeners the fact that things have never "gone to the dogs" as a result of "anything new," or, indeed, for any other reason.

I wonder in what terms he would describe the social, financial and political decay and fall of such civilizations and empires as Egypt, Sumeria, Babylonia, Rome, old China and the many others, either too completely effaced from human record, or too numerous to mention.

In fact, if I remember correctly, Mr. Roosevelt himself in his campaign speeches of 1932 made some mention of "things going to the dogs," or words to that purport; it being probable that at that time he had not yet become so proficient in the use of colloquialisms, which were no doubt later inspired by the failure of good English to supply appropriate adjectives for the descriptions of the many innovations of the New Deal. Quoting Hugo.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

The present national scene reminds me of an immortal utterance regarding the Third Napoleon, "Napoleon the Little." In 1852 Victor Hugo described and prophesied the verdict of history as follows:

"Be calm, history has got hold of him. Nevertheless, if it flatters Mr. Bonaparte's vanity to be seized by history, if by any chance he nourishes a delusion of his dignity as a political villain, let him dispel it. He will never be anything but the nocturnal strangler of liberty."

Men like Victor Hugo have a long continuance of political values.

Please permit me to second the motion made by the letter to you from Miss De Mille and, with her, to compliment Dr. William Lyon Phelps in revealing the identity of your Post-Impressionist. Reginald Wright Kauffman is indeed what Dr. Phelps calls him: a brilliant man of letters.

I am one of the hundreds who have admired the Post-Impressionist column ever since it started in your paper. It is unique among columns in that it is at once learned and simple, of high standard and tolerant, popular and scholarly, American and universal. V. G.

"I Cannot Sing The Old Songs!"

Post Office, Saturday.

WE were talking with the boss on a subject that invariably gives the talker a sense of superiority; the decline of mankind. We said that nothing so well reflects the soul of a generation as its songs—and we said that those of the 1935 Younger Generation were cynical.

Red nail-dye, divorce and division
Make berren their lives.

Did you ever hear old gentlemen, with misty eyes and quivering voices, sing the songs of their young manhood—"When the Roses Come Again," and all that? Ever listen to middle-aged gentlemen similarly affected as they recalled "Wait Till the Clouds Roll By, Jenny" or "Flirting on the Ice"—the allegedly never-thin ice of the Eighties?

"May a sorrow ne'er o'ertake us,
Arlie darling, you and I."

In those days there was Sentiment with an upper-case S.

It increased throughout the dreamy decade of Charles K. Harris, Harry von Tilzer and Theodore Dreiser's brother, Paul Dresser, whose masterpiece, to our mind, was not "The Banks of the Wabash," which people will hum long after "An American Tragedy" is forgotten, but

"Just tell them that you saw me,
And they will know the rest."

Sigmund Spaeth reprinted a lot of those songs—"There'll Come a Time," "The Moth and the Flame" and so on—in his "Read 'Em and Weep," a few years ago:

"Just another fatal wedding,
Just another broken heart."

"Read 'em and weep, indeed!" said we to the boss. Why, we told him, only the other day we ourselves wrote a ballad called "The Case That Was Never Tried," which would have made our fortune 40 years ago—so that we wouldn't be working for him today. It concluded:

Before the old court-crier her name had loudly cried,
That sadly wronged young lady by her own hand had died
In the Heartbreak Breach of Promise Case, the case that was never tried.

"But nowadays," we asked the boss, "how would 'Let Me Call You Sweetheart' be written?"

Whereupon, with much grudging help from the boss, we wrote it as, we said, it would be written, sung and admired by the youth of today. And this was its refrain:

Don't you call me "Sweetheart"
When I'm done with you——
Don't you try to neck me
Like you used to do.
Can't you feel me shudder
When you stick like glue?
Don't you call me "Sweetheart:"
When I'm through, I'm through!

The boss inquired: "Have you heard any of the songs that this cynical generation is singing just now?"

And we said we hadn't—just now.

So he took us over to a neighbor's house.

"What you hear now," said the boss, "they've been singing for over a year—more'n that, mostly—and they don't give any signs of tiring."

About a dozen young girls were there and about as many young men, the latter with jaundiced, daredevil pipes in their big fists, the former with sophisticated fingernails punching pink holes in their cigarettes and sophisticated lips leaving pink bows on the edges of their highball-glasses.

Well, with misty glances and voices emotion-shaken, they were chorusing

"She whispered softly, 'It's best not to linger';
And then, as I kissed her hand, I could see
She wore a plain gold ring on her finger."

"Do they," we gasped, "take it seriously? Do they mean it?"

"Wait a minute," the boss cautioned.

Just in time! That group broke sadly into:

"So I chaffed and I gaily laughed
To think they could doubt my love;
Yet today
My love has flown away.
Now laughing friends deride
Tears I cannot hide;
So I smile and say:
'When a lovely flame dies,
Tears get in your eyes.'"

"You bet your life they mean it!" said the boss.

THE WHIPPING POST.

Some time since, we ventured to criticize a colleague on this classic editorial-page for writing the phrase:

"I liked to watch the choir . . . speak to each other."

We said that the thing we liked best was to watch the Army chase himself.

"Ah, that's doubtless amusing," Claus Bogel now writes us: Claus Bogel who has a record as an actor which never deserved any save "capacity houses"—"that's doubtless amusing. But did you ever watch (and wait) for an audience—and then see him come in?

"Not so humorous, this!"

Deterrents to Wine-Bibbing.

New York, Aug. 30.

THE worst handicap to the native American wine industry, aside from the rancid flavor of its wine, which often suggests steel filings only partly dissolved in acid, is the supercilious attitude of those who pretend to be its best friends. This refers to the small but clamorous sect of connoisseurs who can shut their eyes, sniff a cork and go into a trance like that of a two-bit fortune teller, moaning, gurgling and squirming all over the room as the reek from the stopper conjures visions of a little village hotel in France—undefiled by American tourists—where the owner went down cellar himself and came stumbling up the damp stone stairs bearing tenderly in his arms a crusted bottle of the selfsame wine on St. Elmer's Day 15 years ago.

Ah, yes, that faint, far fragrance recalls the incident now in all its simple Old World beauty. How they sat there, those two, in tweeds and hobs, pausing on a jolly tramping party through the Cote d'Or, sipping that treasure bottle and munching a strange native cheese—made from pig's milk, mind you, and not unlike laundry soap, if the truth were told—while the old gentleman's 17-year-old daughter, a buxom wench with a coy charm, trampled the dough for tomorrow's bread with her bare feet. Those were the days—eh, my old one?

I suggest that this sort of business has done more to deter Americans from drinking wine than Bishop Cannon, Ella Boole and the National Distillers combined, for it has created in the great mass of potential wine customers a sense of resentment and a feeling that life is too short for wine. If it is necessary to have tramped through Burgundy or to have spent 15 years in a moldy rooming house in Paris, taking one's meals at an unpretentious equivalent of the American Greasy Spoon, where there was sawdust on the floor and the owner's tomcat stalked mice between the customers' feet, the average American will say, "To hell with it!" and continue to dine on fried steaks and fried potatoes washed down with old-fashioned cocktails or one of the standard gin concoctions, probably containing cream.

WINE has been made such a subtle affair that, like money, there are now said to be only a scant handful of experts in the world who understand its mysteries, and these, like the monetary experts, have furious little spats among themselves over the apparently simple matter of tossing a slosh of wine into the human interior, and have written books in support of their opinions.

The hard liquor industry is fortunate in that no such cult has ever plagued its business with their patronage. Any novice may obtain from a lump of whisky or gin the effect for which it is taken. In fact, the novice has an advantage over the connoisseur in that his resistance has not been hardened by experience. Consequently he will reach the fighting or singing stage, according to his temperament, long before the veteran drinker begins to feel the first faint tingle in his brain.

The wine expert, however, constantly reminds the wine layman that even if a wine were very good he, the layman, wouldn't know it, and the average American, who lives in a rush and even ages his liquor fast by electric gadgets, will not take the time and trouble to educate himself. The whisky and gin customers do not find it necessary to visit the distillery and have a personal meeting with the man who shovels the grain into the vat or the one who turns the crank to drain it off when the corruption is complete and the foul mess is ready for the barrels. It make no difference to him what field produced the grain, whether the farmer had a daughter or how many kegs were obtained from a particular vat of mash.

THIS happy indifference is in sharp contrast to the pose of the wine connoisseur, who will undertake to tell you not only whose hands picked the grapes from which a given bottle of wine was made ten years ago, but whether it was raining that day and whether the bottle has been lying on its belly or its side.

Obviously, the inexperienced person is not tempted to try wine when the best of wine is like the worst to him and all wine is vinegar, anyway. And naturally he is not won over to the support of a struggling native industry by constant reminders that he is a hopeless ignoramus on whose barbarian taste it would be a great pity to waste anything but the leavings of the meanest vines in the poorest vineyards in the worst of years.

To drink wine successfully he must abstain from smoking before and after. He must sip for gentle analgesia when he would rather gulp for excitement, and do without the ketchup with which it is his custom to flood his provisions. The discipline is too much like that of the United States Military Academy, and the results, on the basis of the returns since repeal, have not been considered to be worth the ordeal.

Good King George

By

William Lyon Phelps

A LARGE but inexpensive quarto volume of full-page photographs is called "Good King George's Glorious Reign," and has for its secondary title "A Pictorial Record." It is compiled by Jocelyn Oliver and has a preface by Hugh Walpole. (Oxford Press).

• • • •

There is a picture of the King speaking to all his people over the radio; there are pictures of him as a baby, small boy, youth, and man; and one of the most interesting is a picture of Edward VII and George V standing, while Queen Victoria is in a chair, holding a tiny baby; this picture was taken in 1893 and the boy is the present Prince of Wales.

Pictures of the coronation with the golden coach, the later automobiles and still later airplanes, the Prince of Wales in the snows and in the tropics on his various journeys around the world, Capt. Scott in 1912 finding Amundsen's flag at the South Pole, where he had placed it only a few weeks before Scott arrived, pictures of the World War with the battleships and the tanks, Armistice Day, the two intrepid climbers, Mallory and Irvine, far up on Mount Everest, where they lost their lives.

• • • •

There is given in successive pictures the day's routine for the busy King George, who has very little rest, recreation, or free time.

The advance in scientific transportation; a picture of the train called The Royal Scot, which was brought over to America recently; the excitement over the King's long illness, and the universal joy at his recovery.

Here are 25 years of modern history in a panorama.

The South Manchuria Railway

Vast Company Opens Doors To China From Manchuria.

This morning, if announced plans are fulfilled, the South Manchuria Railway Co. will change the old Russian guage of 5 feet to the standard guage of 4 feet 8½ inches over the Hsinking-Harbin section of the old Chinese Eastern Railway. The relaying of the rails over this 150-mile stretch of track is scheduled to be compressed into a period of three hours by a force of 2,000 railway employes.

The development, illustrating the complete consolidation of Manchuria's railways under Japanese control, adds further interest to Mr. Ginsbourg's article on the leading role played by the S. M. R. in the Japanese penetration of northern China.

By Mark J. Ginsbourg,

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Shanghai (By Mail).

IT took the Japanese Army less than four weeks to place North China under the shadow of its flag. When the entire political structure of the region had been rebuilt, Gen. Kenji Doihara, the "Lawrence of Manchuria," who ran the army's show, left for Hsinking, drawing the curtain on the first act of the Oriental drama.

The second act began early in July, when Gen Doihara, in conferring with the officials of the South Manchurian Railway Co., indicated that the army intended to follow its military victory in North China with an economic conquest of the area. Following a series of conferences between the military and railway officials, it was announced that the latter agreed to "cooperate" in the economic development of North China.

Simultaneously it was revealed that the S. M. R. would get monopolistic rights in the north, taking over all the existing Japanese investigatory organizations in North China as the first step in its program. Two high officials of the railway firm were immediately dispatched to Tientsin to make all arrangements for the commencement of a comprehensive survey of North China industries, communications, agricultural possibilities and natural resources. Obviously inspired reports indicated that the S. M. R. intended to build and operate railroads in North China, grow cotton, mine coal, develop harbors and establish various industrial enterprises.

• • • •

TO those acquainted with the history, nature and the record of the S. M. R., its new venture in North China means complete economic subjugation of the region by Japanese capital. Therefore, the new developments in North China, although less sensational than the military exploits, are undoubtedly much more significant.

To the romantically inclined the South Manchuria Railway Co. is probably as inspiring as the Hudson Bay or the East India companies of bygone centuries. Nowhere in the world today, not even in the United States, can be found any organization with such innumerable ramifications, such immense political, economic and military power, such potentialities and such prospects for future development.

The company was formed in 1906 by special charter and order of the government to take care of the southern portion of the railway taken from the Russians in the war of 1905. The original capital of the firm was 200,000,000 yen (the yen is quoted today at slightly better than 29 cents), of which a half was furnished by the Japanese government in the form of railway property and coal mines formerly owned by the Russians. The other half was offered to the Chinese government and the Chinese and Japanese investors, but the Chinese, in a fit of patriotic self-abnegation, turned the offer down.

In 1920 the capital was increased to 440,000,000 yen, of which the Japanese government still furnished half. On March 6, 1933, with Emperor Kangte firmly in the Manchukuoan saddle, and the investment prospects brighter than ever, the S. M. R. raised its capitalization to the immense figure of 800,000,000 yen, the Tokyo administration still retaining a half of the interest. The other half is reportedly held by the vast Mitsui, Mitsubishi, Okura and Sumitomo interests of Japan.

TO show the extent of the company's activities a few more figures are necessary. In the first 26 years of its operation, ending March 31, 1933, the company directly invested 758,000,000 yen, of which 273,663,000 yen was in railway property, 180,000,000 yen in public works, 108,000,000 yen in coal mines and 87,837,000 yen in harbor development. In addition to these direct undertakings, the concern loaned nearly 160,000,000 yen to Chinese railroads, which have since been "gobbled up" by Manchukuo, and 120,000,000 yen in shares of affiliated corporations and other securities.

The Manchurian "incident" was one of the firm's luckiest "breaks." In 1907, the company's first year of operation, the net profit amounted to 2,000,000 yen. Twenty-three years later, in 1929, the net income reached the record figure of 45,000,000 yen. Next year, with the silver slump, the company's profits declined to 21,000,000 yen, falling to 12,000,000 yen in 1931, the year of world depression and the Manchurian interlude. With Manchukuo an "independent and friendly empire," Dame Fortune again smiled upon the S. M. R. shareholders, with the unprecedented net income of 61,000,000 yen. Most of this profit was derived from the operation of the railways and from interest on deposits and loans. The profits declined to 46,000,000 yen in 1934.

Although the S. M. R. began primarily as a railway concern, it has gradually transformed itself into a vast organization, which in the past three years has formed the backbone of Manchukuo's economic structure. The activities of the concern are recounted, in part, as follows, in its report of June, 1934:

"Besides its extensive railway undertakings in South Manchuria . . . the company conducts, as accessory enterprises, coal mines, wharves, warehousing, hotels and other activities. The company is also engaged in educational, hygienic and other public works within the railway zone. It controls a number of joint-stock companies, iron works, electric and gas plants, chemical works, shipping and dockyard companies, express undertakings, etc., chiefly in South Manchuria and acts also as a holding company for these concerns..."

• • • •

THIS account is singularly modest, in that its general terms do not give a correct picture of the immensity of the company's enterprises. The single word—"hygenic," means large and well-equipped hospitals in 14 towns, a medical college, a public health institute, an animal-disease research institute and a vast medical organization which almost single-handed keeps epidemics out of south Manchuria. The report also omits such "minor" enterprises as gold mining, manufacture of arms, oil refining and sales, soya bean oil extraction, steel production, manufacture of machines, operation of bus and aerial communications, cement production, lumber mills, brick kilns, ceramic factory, manufacture of spirits and a thousand-and-one others.

The concern's greatest single gain from the explosion of the bomb, which severed Manchuria from China on the night of September 18, 1931, was the transfer of all Manchukuo railways to its management. On February 9, 1933, the Hsinking government nationalized practically all of the country's railroads. Less than three weeks later the government assigned the management and operation of all these lines to the S. M. R., in view of the company's "long and continued experience of railway operation in Manchuria." Such an arrangement, the company's report later explained with delightful naivete, would be "mutually advantageous in settling the enormous amount of the new state's indebtedness to that company in connection with the several railway lines financed and constructed by the company in the past."

Railroad's Network Enmeshes Economy of Rich Empire.

The government also "instructed" the S. M. R. to build three railways, not unhelpful in moving Japanese troops to the Soviet borders in case of need, at the cost of 100,000,000 yen, The extent of other obligations was placed at 130,000,000 yen, thus virtually placing Manchukuo in permanent vassalage to the S. M. R., as there are slight prospects of Hsinking ever raising 230,000,000 yen to pay off its debts to the firm.

With the transfer of the North Manchuria Railway (Chinese Eastern), long the bone of contention between Tokyo and Moscow, to Manchukuo ownership, this was also handed over to the S. M. R. for safekeeping, bring the total length of railroads operated by the company to 6,782 kilometers. All these railways are operated through the high-sounding "General Direction of State Railways," run by the affable Kanji Usami, who was "borrowed" from the S. M. R.

• • • •

THE company also operates and improves the harbors of Newchwang, Hulutao (which was originally developed by Dutch interests under a contract from the "Young Marshal" Chang Hsueh-liang, whom the Japanese ungently put out of his Manchurian and North China pastures), Antung, Dairen, Seishin and Rashin. Up to 1933 the company spent 75,000,000 yen on the Dairen Harbor, being rewarded for its efforts by the port's trade turnover exceeding Shanghai's at least once this year. The harbors in Rashin and Seishin in Korea, are being developed for reasons having some relation to their proximity to Vladivostok.

The company operates the Fushun coal mines, the largest open cut in the world, which produced more than 8,000,000 tons of coal in 1933. The exports of this coal to Japan have begun to affect Japan's domestic mining, causing vehement protests from the Japanese producers. The Showa steel works, lying on iron-ore deposits estimated at 400,000,000 tons, has a monopoly in the field, having acquired its sole major rival, Baron Okura's Penhsihu Colliery and Iron Works.

The company's importance in world politics has been demonstrated time and again when it conducted independent negotiations with foreign countries. Its heads have always been selected from among Japan's leading politicians, and its chairmanship had often been a stepping stone to cabinet positions. Its power was amply shown in this year's controversy between the Manchukuo government, which wanted to set up an oil monopoly, and the foreign concerns backed by their governments. The S. M. R. was behind the scenes all the while, pulling wires in the interests of the Manchuria Oil Co., which it controls.

But as the influence of the company extended into new fields it began to come into conflict with the all-powerful Japanese Kwantung army, which also has begun to meddle in economics. Many a time a plan drafted by this armys able "brain trusters" had to be shelved in favor of a scheme advanced by the S. M. R. The company was independent of the army, and being closely linked with the Mitsuis, Mitsubishis and Okuras could pull political wires in Tokyo with better effect than the generals. The army apparently came to the conclusion finally that its plan of economic development of Manchukuo could not be carried out until it controlled the S. M. R. This was done this year, when the war office bludgeoned the government into making the commander in chief of the Kwantung army, presently the fat and fiery Gen. Jiro Minami, concurrently the ambassador to Hsinking. The latter official supervises the S. M. R.

HAVING obtained the control of the company the army is now planning to divorce the firm of all of its activities save railway operation, entrusting all others to a new concern. For the time being, however, these plans have been tabled, with the S. M. R. being "encouraged" to go into North China.

The thoroughness with which the S. M. R. took over every branch of Manchuria's economy augurs as much for North China. It also forewarns foreign interests of the bitter and unbeatable competition they will encounter in the region from now on. Reports are already current here that a number of prominent British and American concerns are making preparations to evacuate from North China, as they already have from Manchuria. The Kwantung army's bayonets made the five provinces the political adjunct of the Japanese Empire. The S. M. R. company's funds will make North China Japan's source of raw materials and a happy hunting ground for her investors.

Labor Unites

At A

Geneva Conference

Excerpts from ILO Bulletin.

THE Nineteenth Session of the International Labour Conference was held at Geneva from 4 to 25 June, 1935, under the presidency of Mr. Creswell, Government Delegate of the Union of South Africa and former Minister of Labour of that country. The Vice-Presidents were Mr. Paal Berg, Government Delegate of Norway, Mr. Mircea, Employers' Delegate of Rumania, and Mr. Jouhaux, Workers' Delegate of France.

Fifty-two States took part in the Conference, four of which, the United States of America, the Union of Soviet Socialists Republics, Ecuador and Afghanistan, had joined the Organisation since the last Session and were therefore represented for the first time. As at the last three Sessions, an Official observer was present on behalf of the Government of Egypt, although that State is not yet a Member of the Organisation.

SEVEN points had been officially submitted to the Conference with a view to the drafting of international regulations—seven points concerning labour protection in its most varied forms: they included the fundamental problem of the reduction of hours of work, which has been studied at great length and with some heat at the Sessions of 1933 and 1934 as well as at a tripartite preparatory conference in January of the former year.

If it is remembered that the workers' organisations had to struggle hard for some time thirty years before the forty-eight-hour week received the seal of international agreement, there is no denying that the decision taken by the Nineteenth Session of the International Labour Conference is a landmark of the first importance in social history; for, less than three years after the 40-hour week had been forced into the light of world opinion by the proceedings of the International Labour Organisation, there was a majority, exceeding the constitutional minimum of two-thirds, in favour of a general Convention; and every State which ratifies will be declaring its approval of the 40-hour principle and undertaking to apply it to classes of employment in accordance with the detailed provisions of separate Conventions.

Moreover, the Conference itself placed on the agenda for its 1936 session the question of similar Conventions for public works, building and contracting, iron and steel, and coal mines; and it adopted resolutions requesting the Governing Body of the International Labour Office to do the like with regard to a reduction of hours in the textile, printing and chemical industries.

• • • •

ANOTHER resolution, attached to the General Convention concerning the 40-hour week and, like it, adopted once and for all, dealt with the measures to be taken by Governments so that the application of the principle shall not reduce the weekly, monthly or yearly income of the workers, whichever may be the customary method of reckoning, nor lower their standard of living.

Undoubtedly these tests and other decisions, if taken together, may be regarded as the first and all-important step towards a general reduction of hours of work.

But this does not exhaust the record of the Conference's Nineteenth Session. It had before it another problem intimately connected with the economic depression—that of unemployment among young persons. Of the social problems of the day, this, perhaps more than any other, shocks public opinion and disquiets Governments who look forward to the future.

• • • •

APART from the decisions described above, which the circumstances of the moment throw into a specially vivid light, the following concrete work in other spheres of social legislation was also done this year:

a draft Convention was adopted to establish an international scheme for the maintenance of rights under compulsory invalidity, old age and widow's and orphans' insurance;

a draft Convention was adopted to extend to all countries the prohibition of night work by women in underground work of every sort;

the 1931 Convention limiting hours of work in coal mines was revised on a number of technical points in order to facilitate its ratification; international regulations were prepared, for completion next year after the Governments have been consulted, relating to various systems of reuniting labour in colonies; and similar preparatory work was done with a view of generalising the institution of workers' holidays with pay.

Lastly, the annual discussion on the Director's Report showed, both by the number of speakers and of the countries from which they came, and by the wide diversity of subjects treated, that the Organisation is constantly moving towards universality; the attachment of the non-European countries is witnessed in a striking way by the Chilean Government's offer, and the Governing Body's decision, to convene a labour conference of the American countries at Santiago-de-Chile at the end of 1935.

Church Plans An Observance Of Anniversary

Mount Pleasant Congregational Will Mark Its Fiftieth Year.

Plans to observe the fiftieth anniversary of the organization of Mount Pleasant Congregational Church were launched this week with the appointment of Norton M. Little as chairman of a golden anniversary committee.

An eight-day program beginning February 9, 1936, has been outlined. Mr. Little announced. Miss Edith Dawson is to be secretary of his committee, and the membership will include representatives of every parish organization in the church. Its personnel will be completed in the next two weeks.

After the organization of a small Sunday school in the suburb of Mount Pleasant in 1867, 19 residents of that section met on October 15, 1886, in the newly erected Union Hall on Howard avenue, now Newton street, east of Sixteenth and formally organized the "Mount Pleasant Congregational Society," the corporate title of the crurch of the same name. They called as their first minister, the Rev. Charles H. Small, D. D., and held their first service in Union Hall on Sunday, November 2, 1886.

The membership increased to 400 in 1894, in that year Dr. Small resigned to accept a pastorate in Ohio. He was succeeded by the Rev. M. Ross Fishburn, then assistant minister of the First Congregational Church in this city. Dr. Fishburn's ministry ended in 1909 with his death from typhoid fever. During his service the church membership more than doubled and under the leadership of James E. West, now chief executive of the National Boy Scout organizations, there were more than 1,000 students in the Sunday school.

Following Dr. Fishburn, the ministers were the Rev. Frank J. Goodwin, now in California, 1910 to 1912; the Rev. Clarence A. Vincent, now in Winter Park, Fla., 1914 to 1917; Dr. Walter A. Morgan, now in Chicago, 1917 to 1926; the Rev. Moses R. Lovell, now in Holyoke, Mass., 1926 to 1930, and the present minister, the Rev. Russel J. Clinchy, D. D., since January, 1931. All of the living ministers, except Dr. Goodwin, will have a part in the anniversary program.

Dr. Small is the only living participant in the first service.

The golden anniversary program will include services on two Sunday mornings, a historical night, a community night, an interdenominational night, a musical night and a general reception and social night.

First Congregational Church. The Rev. A. A. Stockdale, D. D., pastor. Dr. Theodore Halbert Wilson will be guest speaker tomorrow morning. His sermon wil be on "Christianity Versus Churchanity." R. E. Lees will be at the organ in the absence of Mr. Gable.

The sermon will be delivered before a union gathering, at which the congregations of Mount Pleasant Congregational Church and All Souls' Unitarian Church will also be present.

Dr. Etz, as general superintendent of Universalist Churches of America, has been spending the last two weeks in Washington, arranging for the general convention of Universalists which will meet here in October.

Wednesday evening there will be a conference between Dr. Etz and the local convention committee, of which Elwood J. Way is chairman. Other members of the committee are Mrs. William H. McGlauflin, Alice Atwood, Mrs. A. M. McCain, Mrs. G. E. Saunders, Mrs. Arnold Shutter, Mrs. D. P. Bonner, Miss Eleanor Bonner, W. E. Claflin, Cornelius Ferris, Norman E. Hicks and M. R. Vollmer.

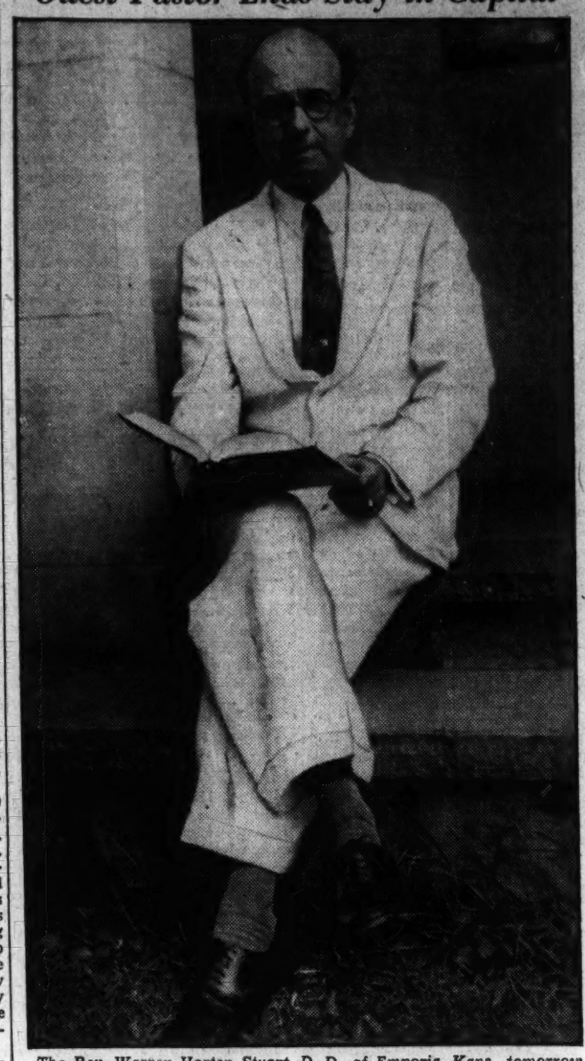
The Rev. J. L. S. Holloman will preach before his congregation at Second Baptist Church, Colored, at 11 a. m. tomorrow on "Real Security. At the evening hour his sermon will be on "The Fallacies of Life."

Guest Pastor Ends Stay in Capital



The Rev. Warren Horton Stuart, D. D., of Emporia, Kans., tomorrow preaches the last of a series of guest sermons in the Church of the Pilgrims, Twenty-second and P streets northwest. Fred Astaire's Dancing, Good Comedy and Berlin Tunes Distinguish "Top Hat"

Gotham Mayor And Miss Moore In Love Feast

'American Songbird' Taken Off Roadsiders' List; New Contracts.

Reprinted From Yesterday's Last Edition.

By Gerald G. Gross,

Substituting for Nelson B. Bell.

We came late, unavoidably, to the preview of "Top Hat" yesterday, but not too late to witness a liberal amount of Fred Astaire's magic dancing, laugh at Erik Rhodes' lines and absorb a right nice, but not startling, musical score which Irving Berlin has provided.

Dancing—comedy—songs. That's about the order of merit in this RKO-Radio Pictures' successor to "Flying Down to Rio," "Gay Divorcee," and "Roberta." They form an attractive blend which should do well by Keith's ticket office when it arrives there on Sunday, supplanting Katharine Hepburn and "Alice Adams."

By the way, Manager Hardie Meekin wishes to announce a special Labor Day week schedule. On Sunday his Fifteenth street theater will open at 12:45 p. m. with the first showing of "Top Hat" starting at 12:50. Then, commencing with Labor Day, the feature will be first flashed on daily at 9:50 a. m. for the remainder of the week.

Now where were we? Oh, yes, dancing. Well, Astaire is greater, more ingenious in his steps than ever. The "Piccolino," though, seemed somewhat disappointing after the "Carioca" and the "Continental," which it is supposed to eclipse. This makes little difference since Fred (and who remembers "inseparable" sister Adele?) injects enough of his inimitable tap interpretations into dance interludes preceding the "Piccolino" finale to compensate for whatever faults this most ballyhooed routine may possess, if any.

Dancer Sings Four Songs.

Comedy? The richest portion is allotted to the aforementioned Mr. Rhodes, who can shake our sides anytime he wants to say, "I'm displeased to meet you."

But this was to have been merely an acknowledgment of yesterday's screening for local amusement editors at the Fox exchange, rather than a formal review. Same will follow in a few days.

We might say at this point, however, that our favorite song in "Top Hat" is "Isn't This a Lovely Day," even if "Cheek to Cheek" is getting a bigger play on the radio (incidentally, Fred Astaire will sing "Cheek to Cheek" on the Parade of Hits Hour at 8 p. m. tomorrow); that Ginger Rogers sings only one song and Fred four, which is sad because the former has a good voice and the latter is a peerless dancer, and that Helen Broderick, better known on the musical comedy stage than on the screen, fits in splendidly as a broad-minded wife.

Peregrinating friends remember this desk as follows: "We finish here August 31. 'Judment Day,' 'Post Road,' and Elitch's have given me a season of 48 weeks. I am going to California for a vacation. With best wishes, Romaine Callender." (Written August 25 in Elitch's Garden Theater, Denver, Colo., by the former character lead and heavy of the National Theater Players.) "Have just come back from a sweet session at Skowhegan viewing Sally Rand in 'Rain.' She's still got feathers—in different places, that's all! E. deS. M." (Posted August 28 in Northeast Harbor, Me., by the drama editor of the Washington Star.)

"American Songbird" Stilled.

Catherine Prichard, smiling publicity director of the Roadside Theater, came in yesterday to announce that "American Songbird" has been withdrawn from this summer's production schedule. Accordingly, a revival of "To Die at Dawn" will succeed "The Henrietta" September 9 instead of "American Songbird," which has been planned to fill that spot.

"To Die at Dawn," the blood-reeking mellerdrahmah which opened the Roadsiders' season on the Rockville pike, will be offered for one week only. Harold Stepler, Ralph Fowler, Gail Dennis and John Edwards are among the performers who will assume the same roles they had in the earlier production.

On the Horizon.

Always looking out for the future, the various and estimable directors of public relations of the film and vaudeville dispensaries already have come through with next week's amusement line-ups, although this week's new shows are just opening.

So beginning next Friday "Accent on Youth" (screen) and Ted Weems' orchestra (stage) at the Earle will buck "Dante's Inferno" (screen) and Art Jarrett's Orchestra at Loew's Fox. "Accent on Youth," based on Samuel Raphaelson's comedy, features Sylvia Sidney and Herbert Marshall. Weems will be assisted by his brother, Art, "Red" Ingle, Elmo Tanner and the Selbys. Spencer Tracy, Claire Trevor and Henry B. Walthall are the names in "Dante's Inferno." Among the entertainers whom Jarrett will present are Eleanor Holm, most beautiful of the swimming champions. Eddie Rio, from the Vanities; Mann, Dupree and Lee, dancers, and Margot and Libby Robin, mimics, will round out the stage bill.

Meantime, "Call of the Wild," is scheduled to mush into the Palace with Clark Gable and Loretta Young whenever "Anna Karenina" makes her exit; "Page Miss Glory," with Marion Davies, Dick Powell and others, is booked for a repeat engagement at the Metropolitan following "The Irish in Us," and "China Seas" is due at the Columbia next Friday for its third week on F Street.

At Chevy Chase Lake tonight a girl will be selected as "Miss Washington of 1935," which entitles her to free gowns, free stockings, free beauty treatment and a free excursion to Atlantic City, where she will compete for national honors. Judges will pick one from among the 13 enterprising young women who survived the elimination contest held Tuesday night. The winner will leave Monday for Philadelphia to face the round of entertainment which has been arranged for her and the scores of other girls heading for the same Jersey roundup. Two alternates will be chosen by the local judges just to make sure Washington is represented in the national pulchritude symposium.

Grace Moore Returns.

The Associated Press reports Grace Moore's return to the United States yesterday after a triumphal visit to England.

"It was so nice of them and so appealing to me," murmured Miss Moore. "I never had anyone call me Gracie since my old black mammy down in Jellicoe, Tenn."

It seems that 3,000 Londoners, disappointed when they were unable to obtain tickets for the American singer's third appearance in Covent Garden, gathered below her dressing room and shouted, "We want Gracie!"

She was thrilled and embarrassed when Scotland Yard men were assigned to guard her. Accompanied by her husband, Valetino Parera, Miss Moore will remain in New York for a few days before going to Hollywood. Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia welcomed her at City Hall and held out a bouquet of roses.

"We are very proud of you," said the mayor.

"I am very proud of you, Mr. Mayor," said the singer.

Late Film Developments.

Late news from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Samuel Goldwyn and Alexander Korda Productions:

New contracts with Jackie Cooper, Nat Pendleton and Robert Benchley are announced. The latter's latest picture is "China Seas," in which he is funny, indeed. Master Jackie will be seen next with Wallace Beery in "O'Shaughnessy's Boy" and Pendleton is working in "Here Comes the Band."

"Riff Raff," bound for production, will give jobs to Jean Harlow, Spencer Tracy, Joseph Calleia, Una Merkel, George Givot, Mickey Rooney, etc. etc.

"Barbary Coast," starring Miriam Hopkins, Edward G. Robinson and Joel McCrea, was completed this week and will be released shortly through United Artists.

Robert Donat, in "The Ghost Goes West," appropriates to himself two of Charles Laughton's wives in "Henry VIII." They are Elsa Lanchester (Anne of Cleves) and Everley Gregg (Catherine Parr).

Making a Bullish Laugh Market

These two top flight comediennes, Gracie Allen and Joan Blondell, will be running boxoffice competition to each other at Loew's Fox and Warner Brothers' Earle, respectively, for a week beginning today. Gracie's chief accomplice in "Here Comes Cookie" is her sidekick, George Burns, while Joan is abetted chiefly by Glenda Farrell in "We're in the Money."

Broadway + + By Ed. Sullivan

Manhattan Promenade.

New York, Aug. 30.

There is no gainsaying the fact that theatrical or rather vaudeville history has been made by the Lou Holtz-Belle Baker-Block and Sully show. In two weeks at the Capitol, a week at Loew's Paradise and a week at Loew's State, this combination has rolled up gross gate receipts that are incredible. Their Loew's State performance this week, in which they cracked every record established there in the last ten years and set a new all-time mark for paid attendances, is staggering. They will do perhaps $37,000 on the full week, $4,000 short of Dempsey's house record in 1925, but the lower prices that prevail now account for that. What they have done is good for the theater, a shot-in-the-arm to vaudeville as it was about to be counted out, and every performer in the country, every stagehand in vaude houses, every pit band musician and every electrician in the industry owes them a genuine debt of appreciation. They came through in the pinch, and I take my hat off to all of them. The only thing not big about this show was the headliners' treatment of Moore and Revel, two youngsters who are the applause hit of the troupe.

There is a definite finality to Labor Day when it is reached in the parade of months. It is the swan song of summer, and winter's shrill announcement: "Here I came, ready or not." In the symphony of seasons, the Master Electrician, like the electrician in a huge theater, co-ordinates his stage lights with the action taking place on the stage. His summer colors are green and blue. His fall colors are russet, and even the leaves now take their cue from a moon that turns from blood red to autumn yellow. Labor Day is the next-to-closing act on the vaudeville show of the months, with winter as the headliner. A new tang is in the air, the winds bring the aroma of dry leaves, raked together in innumerable piles and set ablaze in country towns. Housewives in the country put away their last jar of preserves, men neatly stack the last piles of cordwood which will fuel the winter fires. And the youngsters, bored at last with vacation, prepare to return to the classrooms that will smell tartly when the first flow of heat courses through freshly-painted radiators. Soon the frost will coat the pumpkin, for when Labor Day comes, winter can't be far behind.

Never saw anything like the Harvest Moon Ball at Madison Square Garden, with 20,000 jamming the arena and close to 10,000 turned away by the police. As Eleanor Powell said to Abe Lyman, it was the first time that people over went to Madison Square Garden knowing in advance that they'd see a waltz.

Of all the stars who skyrocketed to success, George Burns and Gracie Allen have changed the least. Yesterday they signed a new contract for $5,000 per program on the air, and Broadway, which has a bad word for anybody who is too successful, actually cheered the news. The answer is, of course, that the bigger they are, the nicer they are. These two are a bit of all right, for I've never met anyone so charitable in a sotto voce manner.

There is a hay fever club in the Bronx. It has about 150 members and the president is an undertaker, of all people! Like most undertakers, he is a cheery person. Most of them are happy individuals, now that I come to think of it. But what I like best about this hay fever club is the club motto: "Sic Semper Gesundheit."

Autumn Will Bring Return of Elegance in Women's Clothes, Hattie Carnegie Predicts

Case Contains All Implements For Nail Care

Woman's Hands Noticed Most Frequently, Recent Survey Showed.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

Recently a well-known periodical conducted a survey among prominent men to find out what it was they first noticed in a woman.

The majority replied, "Her hands." So while you're expending time and energy on making your face dazzling, don't forget that most men will glance first at your hands. If they're well kept and carefully manicured, you'll undoubtedly get to first base, but if they're unattractive, with stubby nails and careless cuticles, you'll probably never see the gentleman again.

So let's begin right now to give some very serious thought to the care of our nails. No one can be well manicured without a lot of implements such as emory boards, orange sticks, scissors, buffers, soap, collars, polish and cuticle cream. But instead of purchasing these articles piecemeal, why not get them all in one handy little kit? A local department store has a perfectly grand one, a smart black outfit with a red lining. This case contains all the aids to nail beauty anyone could possible want, put out by one of our most reliable cosmetics houses.

Eyebrow Twizzors.

COMBINE eyebrow tweezers with a pair of scissors and what do you have? Twizzors. With the handle of scissors, and the ends of tweezers they're just right for doing a quick and accurate job of plucking out wayward brows.

Twizzors are easy to manipulate. They may be depended on to get a sure-fire grasp on the wild hair. They are priced at 25 cents in a downtown store.

A Season of Sets.

THIS IS a season of sets. Scarves to blend with belts, gloves and pocketbooks to match spell autumn smartness this year. The woman whose accessories are just a jumble of any old odds and ends will find herself outside looking in from a fashion viewpoint this winter. She must scout around for articles that match, and her general ensemble must be a symphony in harmonious colors and materials.

A local store falls into step with the general trend with some perfectly adorable matched jewelry which you will go for the minute you see it. These attractive items include a set of buttons, earrings, clips, pins and bracelets to match. They are stunning and inexpensive.

The bracelets especially are just what you need to give that certain zip and dash which spells style to your costume. Made of polished wood, they come in threes, bound together by a tiny gold chain. They will be grand when worn as a contrast to a green dress, or with tweeds in brownish mixtures.

Trousers for Glasses.

GLASSES are wearing pants this year! Actually, believe it or not, wise hostesses are going to put trousers on the drinks they serve. Someone has at last solved the problem of what to do with glasses which scratch the finish of your pet mahogany table or leave disfiguring marks on a beloved cherry console. The answer is pants!

These pants slip on to the base of the glass. They are made of a soft, fleecy material somewhat akin to that used in raincoats, so they are absolutely waterproof. Not to tiniest drop can seep through to spoil the furniture, or to make the glass slippery and hard to hold. They are not only useful but ornamental as well. Hand-painted floral designs in pastel colors adorn their sides. A flick with a damp rag is sufficient to clean them, so they can be used over and over again. The price is only $1 for a box of 12.

Rich Colors and Material To Mark Designer's Styles

Rich color and lavish use of furs are two fall fashion points which Hattie Carnegie (left), outstanding couturier, pointed to as indicative of greater elegance in dress this season.

New York Modiste Will Use Sequins and Furs Lavishly in Fall Modes; They Add Glamor to Coats and Dresses, She Explains.

At this season feminine interests are centered on fall fashions. What is the present trend? In the following article, fifth in a series of interviews with American designers, Hattie Carnegie discusses this subject.

By Frances Mangum.

"PEOPLE are going to dress again!" In these words Hattie Carnegie summed up her version of the fall fashion scene.

"There is going to be more formality and more elegance, she said, "more richness in color and material!"

Miss Carnegie, one of the most successful American designers, feels that no matter which way the fashion trend, it is always interesting, but because of the unusual richness predominating in fabrics and styles this season, interest is at a higher pitch than ever.

She herself is stressing several points for fall.

"First of all, I'm showing dresses with fuller skirts," she said. "Secondly, the daytime skirts are definitely shorter. Thirdly, capes. I'm emphasizing capes. Fur capes, fabric capes and fur-trimmed capes. I think they're chic and well in line with the season's fashion picture."

She's Using Furs Lavishly.

Miss Carnegie also is using numerous sequins for trimming. Because they have a richness and glamour about them she feels they are particularly suited to present styles.

"And furs," she continued. "I'm using them lavishly on coats, suits and dresses. They seem to blend perfectly with the luxurious keynote of new fashions."

Color, too. Miss Carnegie is stressing color in all costumes. Her favorite shades, apparent from her new creations, are a deep, rich red, green, both dark and bright, blue and brown. A great many of her new models, she admitted, show a decided Renaissance influence.

That is because French designers are showing this influence on their clothes, she explained. Miss Carnegie believes that American designers are largely dependent on the French for ideas and trends. She admits she is.

"It is because the French designers have more background against which to work, and more traditions than we have," she said. "America is such a young country that as far as I can see, it is very difficult to get the proper inspiration for clothes here. Whether we realize it or not, we are all influenced by the fashion trends in Paris. We may not want to be, but we are!"

Strangely enough, Miss Carnegie, widely known now as a designer of dresses, began her career as a milliner. Even then, though, she designed her own dresses. Gradually, as her clientele increased, she began designing dresses, coats and suits, together with hats in her small shop. Now her field extends to all phases of the feminine wardrobe.

From the little hat shop which Miss Carnegie started have grown three large businesses, a dress salon, where clothes are designed for individuals, a ready-to-wear shop and the wholesale branch.

Started Shop in Hard Times.

The ready-to-wear business began, she explained, during the bad years when customers could not afford the old prices. Finding it almost immediately successful she has continued it and watched it grow every year.

Her career does not present a picture of hard years and a long, difficult climb to Miss Carnegie. She says her first small shop grew rapidly into her present business.

While it is necessary for Miss Carnegie to be a business woman to manage her stores, she is, by her own confession, primarily interested in clothes, fashions, and their trends.

In Tuesday's Post Frances Clyne tells how to change your personality by means of your clothes.

Grooming Skill Will Be Taught College Girls

Faculty to Have Titles of Stylist, Hygienist and Beautician.

By the United Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Aug. 30.—The feminine art of wielding a powder puff had been taken off a hit-or-miss basis with the announcement of a personal grooming course of Stephens College, a school for young women.

Fair students will be expected to undertake with equal seriousness the difficulties of Plato and Pulchirtude, calculus and compacts and unicameral legislatures and underwear.

There will be no need for best friends to tell the girls how they are getting along in their studies in the new course. The personal grooming laboratory will be complete. Slide projectors will enable the girls to see themselves in silhouette.

There will be makeup tables, fitting rooms, apparatus for clothes analysis and equipment for study of skin care preparations.

There will be two main divisions of the course—personal care and clothing ensemble. A girl's general charm chart, according to college sponsors of the course would also include posture and general impression.

Thus a student's chart would be divided as follows:

Personal care: Thirty points, on basis of cleanliness, neatness, hair arrangement, clean skin, nail care, teeth care, cosmetics.

Clothing ensemble: Forty-five points, propriety of dress to occasion, style, color, design suited to material, press and repair, undegarments.

Posture: Fifteen points.

General impression: Ten points.

Faculty members in the new course will bear titles such as "stylist," "beautician," and "hygenist."

The new course has advanced as the logical step after the offering of courses in homemaking and home economics. Credits will be awarded as in any other course.

All faculty members will be women, it was believed.

Distressed Over Husband's Recurrent Symptoms of Dread Ailment and Without Funds for Diagnosis or Treatment, Young Wife Asks Advice.

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: Before presenting my problem I want to express appreciation of your interesting and worthwhile column.

Both my husband and myself have been haunted for some time with the idea that he may be a victim of tuberculosis, though we rarely speak of the dread term. He has some symptoms which come and go in uneven degrees of severity. I realize the greatest obstacle in combatting the disease is the unwillingness of individuals to admit they have the symptoms and to present themselves for examination. However, it takes courage to do so where there is no money to pay for examination nor for treatment if the disease is found to exist; and most cowardly of all, perhaps, is the fear of breaking up a happy home.

* * * *

My husband was a victim of the depression but has had steady employment since the fall of 1933, so we have been slowly achieving our little three-room apartment in the suburbs.

I thought you might be able to tell us whether or not there are any public health authorities who give an examination for tuberculosis, and also what provision can be made for treating patients who can not meet the expense.

* * * *

If I could obtain work I could support myself and our child and probably contribute something toward expense of treatments. I am a stenographer and although not expert I make a willing and conscientious employe, and I will make a glad and willing fight for a job if it becomes necessary.

Another reason why we have procrastinated is this: Early in 1933, just after the birth of our son, I did prevail upon my husband to see our doctor. The doctor gave him a physical examination and said he could find nothing wrong with his lungs and that he was all right. Naturally we were both relieved and elated. The psychological effect was all to the good. It gave my husband courage to come to Washington to answer a Civil Service call.

* * * *

However, this physician did not give him any of the scientific tests, such as sputum analysis or X-ray. And so after the excitement of getting work and making changes subsided the same old symptoms reappeared—loss of appetite, exhaustion, occasional fever, night sweats, etc. These are interspersed with periods of relatively normal health.

* * * *

What brought me to the point of believing my husband should again be examined and this time given every known scientific test was an article in a recent issue of a well-known magazine, written by a tuberculosis patient who was twice superficially examined and the third examination, scientifically conducted, found him in an advanced stage of illness.

I hope you can tell me where my husband can be given such an examination where the reliability of the pronouncement cannot be doubted. WORRIED.

What to Do.

DEAR WORRIED: Dr. R. C. Williams of the United States Public Health Service, advises me there are two courses of action open to your husband.

First, as a Government employe, he can appeal to his immediate superior to give him a letter to Dr. R. M. Grimm, of the United States Public Health Service, old Postoffice Department Building, Twelfth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, requesting that he be given an examination for tuberculosis. This letter should bear the signature and official title of his superior. It will secure for your husband a careful scientific examination, with X-ray, and will result in an exact pronouncement as to the state of his health. Furthermore, if it develops that tuberculosis exists, and if it can be shown the ailment was incurred in the line of duty (that is, since he has been in Government employ and because of conditions peculiar to his work) the Government makes provisions for treatment.

* * * *

Second, he can be examined at the tuberculosis clinic at 301 C street northwest, conducted by the District Public Health Department. Clinic hours are 1 p. m. on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. He is advised to go to the clinic on Wednesday, as complete examinations, including X-ray, are made on that day. Should he go another day, he would be asked to come back on Wednesday for the X-ray.

* * * *

Should he be found ailing, his clinic physician will make all recommendations he thinks necessary. He may be placed on the waiting list of the District Tuberculosis Hospital, Fourteenth and Upshur streets northwest, if the state of his health and his finances warrant the move. There are 220 beds in this hospital, and the patient who is placed on the waiting list is admitted, as a rule, within a week's time. This information was given me by Miss Mildred Showalter, secretary to Mrs. Ernest Grant, who is managing director of the District of Columbia's Antituberculosis Association.

* * * *

Mrs. Grant's office is in the Social Service House, 1022 Eleventh street northwest, and her telephone number is National 6262. Miss Showalter has said she will gladly give you any further information you may wish or need concerning the C street clinic. The Antituberculosis Association contributes funds toward maintenance of the clinic.

* * * *

It is barely possible your husband is suffering from functional (or nervous) rather than physical or organic illness. Cases have been known where persons entertained a psycho-neurotic fear of some particular disease and eventually developed (in synthetic form) all the symptoms of that disease which were known to them. For instance, if the victim feared death from tuberculosis, and he had read or heard that symptoms of the dread ailment include exhaustion, loss of appetite, occasional fever and night sweats, he might by brooding on the possibility, develop these symptoms to all intents and purposes. The fact that these symptoms disappeared in your husband's case during the period when he was enjoying the stimulating excitement of taking a new job and creating a home in a new environment, suggests this possibility.

Should examination reveal his lungs to be perfectly sound, I would suggest he submit to an examination by an expert diagnostician, preferably a psychiatrist or neurologist. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Simple and Dainty Frock Designed for Housewives

Pattern No. 960.

HERE is a pattern for the simplest and daintiest of frocks (some six pieces to put together), and an apron to match! Even better, the apron buttons on the four strategiv places and ties in back, so it avoids the usual apron trouble of sliding and slipping.

Printed cotton, gingham, seersucker, and cotton broadcloth are suitable fabrics for this design. But do choose a pretty print and color—even though it is "just a house dress." This "Sew-Simple" pattern is cut in sizes 34 to 46. Size 36 requires 5⅜ yards of 35-inch material for both frock and apron.

Parents Urged To Encourage Child's Queries

The following article is the fourth of a series on home activities for children. These appear Tuesdays and Saturdays on the woman's page. Mrs. Bartlett, the author, is active in progressive education circles.

By Lenore K. Bartlett.

MRS. FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT, in a recent article in a national weekly, said, "I think at a child's birth if a mother could ask a fairy godmother to endow it with the most useful gift, that gift should be curiosity." Later in the same article, she states, "In its simplest form, curiosity will help you to an all-around education. That is why little children are so often living question marks. They naturally desire to know about the world in which they live and if they lose that curiosity, it is usually because grown people are so stupid."

MRS. BARTLETT.

In these few words, Mrs. Roosevelt has summarized the purposes and ideas which form the basic fundamental around which revolves the problem of fostering and encouraging interest-building activities for children. The first phase of this problem is the ceaseless urge within a child for greater knowledge. The other phase is the responsibility of the parent and the school to guard this precious attribute and to stimulate a desire for further knowledge.

I have taken individuals as well as classes of children through bakeries, roundhouses, airports, ice cream plants, blacksmith shops, wholesale houses, dairies, postoffices, fire houses, etc. They become vitally alive, curious, fascinated. Because knowledge comes first hand to the child through his actual participation, it becomes an experience for him. The results of these experiences may not be evident immediately, but they are lasting, and at a future time he will use this knowledge.

The young child is interested in the here and now. The older child will venture farther into the past in his effort to understand what has gone into the making of our present-day civilization, and the concrete form of his experiences and the scope of his imaginative flights will be more intricate. At either age it is important for us as parents to give every encouragement to these evidences of curiosity, first by answering their questions intelligently and then helping them to obtain first-hand information through trips to the many fascinating activities of their community life.

New Freedom Spreads Eastward to Siam

Wife of Minister to U. S. Pictures Women's Emancipation.

By Dudley Harmon.

WESTERN ideas and theories concerning freedom for women have penetrated as far East as Siam, according to Mme. Phya Rajmaitra, the charming wife of the newly appointed Siamese minister to the United States.

Until lately, the women in this tiny Asiatic kingdom have always conformed to the Oriental conception that women should lead secluded lives behind the thick walls of their homes. Until recent years, the world of business, sports, and even of extensive social contacts has been denied them. Coincidental with the rapid spread of Occidental ideas in Asia, however, Mme. Rajmaitra said, Siamese women have emerged from their seclusion to enter fields hitherto unknown to them.

Lipstick Vogue Spreads.

"Contrary to what one might expect," Mme. Rajmaitra said in her faultless English, "it is not stenography which attracts the greatest number of our girls who wish careers, but the art of the beauty specialist. Within recent years the lipstick and the permanent wave have spread through our country like wildfire, and for the first time, Siamese girls know what it is to visit the beauty parlor. Many of them have opened their own salons, and others are finding employment as manicurists and hairdressers.

"Nursing is another profession which has attracted many Siamese women. In our country we have many fine, up-to-date hospitals, equipped with the best European and American apparatus. Many of our young women who plan to become nurses go abroad for their training. In fact, two of them are studying nursing in America.

"As yet, women take no part in the political life of my country. Since they are not even allowed to vote, they are still far removed from activities of this kind.

"We are proud of our women lawyers, however. There are not many of them, because law is a field which has hitherto been dominated by men, and it is only recently that women lawyers have been able to obtain any recognition. Most of our girls receive their law degrees from the university in Bangkok."

Siamese women of the upper classes have not yet invaded the business world to the extent done so by society women in this country, according to Mme. Rajmaitra. She believes that it is only a question of time, however, before they will begin to engage in activities other than those of a social nature.

"Siamese women are going in for athletics as well as careers," Mme. Rajmaitra said. "Golf and tennis are their favorite sports, and tournaments are held regularly. In and about Bangkok, the capital, are numerous sporting clubs and golf courses.

Social Life Modernized.

"The new freedom has influenced the social life of the young Siamese, as well. For the first time in the history of the country, young girls of good family are occasionally allowed to go out at night unchaperoned, and the marriage arranged exclusively by the families is slowly giving way to the love match."

Mme. Rajmaitra has spent most of her life in Japan, Italy and England, where her father held various posts in the diplomatic service. This is her first visit to America. The two weeks since her arrival she has spent in getting settled and accustoming herself to her new surroundings.

Prompt Relief Is First Need In Convulsions

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

CONVULSIONS in infants and children present one of the most terrifying episodes with which parents are faced. They have a habit of occurring so unexpectedly that the means of handling the situation are rarely at hand. While convulsions are seldom fatal, yet some degree of brain damage may result, and those in charge of the child must provide prompt relief. The primary object is to control the actual attack; the cause may await a later search.

We must understand that convulsions are in themselves not a disease but merely a symptom of some condition that brings on a series of involuntary contractions of muscles usually associated with unconsciousness. Infants are in hair-trigger balance to the factors that cause the sympton; not only are attacks more likely to occur in the early months of life, but they are more dangerous.

Toxic conditions accompanied by a high temperature are often responsible. If bacteria are growing within the body a rapid elimination of toxins may occur, and toxemia plus a high temperature not infrequently means convulsions. Diseases such as measles, chicken-pox scarlet fever, meningitis and pneumonia are often attended with convulsions.

Sometimes brain injuries occur during the passage of the infant through the birth canal. These may give rise later to the condition known as spastic paralysis. Now and then convulsions with a high temperature may appear when the baby is 2 or 3 days old. These are probably absorption symptoms, but they must be controlled quickly. The child may be deeply cyanotic or cyahosis (blueness) may alternate with pallor, and severe recurring seizures are not uncommon.

A deficiency of calcium in the body may lead to the condition known as tetany or spasmophilia. Occasionally convulsions manifest themselves as a result of rickets, and they may be observed coincident with the cutting of the first teeth. As the child grows older—passes the fifth year—convulsions will be less frequent, and when they occur between the fifth and twelfth years epilepsy must be thought of.

One to three ounces of a 3 per cent solution of epsom salts, injected slowly into the rectum, will be rather rapidly absorbed and will have a tendency to reduce swelling of the brain. If the convulsion is caused by intestinal toxemia as an accompaniment of summer diarrhea, a soapsuds enema may be useful. In severe cases, chloral hydrate, sodium bromide, or even ether or chloroform may be required.

Maryland Projects End; 5,000 Jobless Facing Relief Rolls

Telegraph Orders Halt Emergency Work in State.

Pay Roll of $40,000 Weekly Is Cut Off

Nation's Charity Will Result; Plans May Be Revised.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Aug. 30.—Telegraphic orders to city and county relief agencies went into effect today, bringing to an end projects under the direction of the Maryland Emergency Relief Administration.

Almost 5,000 work-relief clients, drawing an average weekly pay roll of $40,000, were affected by the order sent out by State Relief Administrator Harry Greenstein after a conference with State W. P. A. Administrator Francis H. Dryden here yesterday.

All of the clients will go on direct relief until they can be employed under the new Federal programs.

Greenstein and Dryden announced they felt it was better to end present projects now rather than attempt to merge the end of the present program into the beginning of the WPA program.

Early Windup Seen.

They anticipated little difficulty in winding up most of the relief projects today, although Greenstein said a few ceptions would have to be allowed. Te jobs excepted, he said, can be completed within a week or so.

Abel Wolman, Sate PWA chief, disclosed at his office yesterday that four State projects have been rejected by Washington on the ground too few persons would be employed to justify the cost of them.

The projects are being studied with a view to possible revision and resubmission, Wolman said. The rejected applicants are:

Cumberland—Rebuilding old post office and addition to municipal building, $80,000.

Hempstead—Water supply construction, $50,000.

Bel Air—Storm sewers and streets, $51,000.

Rosewood State Training School—Power plant and additions, $118,000,000.

Four Projects Speeded.

Prospects that the new PWA-WPA program will get under way shortly were brightened, however, when Dryden was notified on the approval of the first four strictly State projects to reach the President through the Washington WPA.

The projects involve expenditures aggregating $89,383 in Allegany, Anne Arundel and Cecil Counties and in Baltimore City, with the Federal Government putting up $58,950 and the local sponsors providing $30,433.

Dryden said he had not been informed of the formal granting of the funds, but said work would get under way as soon as the money became available.

900 Workers Idle

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 30 (AP).—About 900 persons employed on approximately 30 work relief projects under the FERA were idle today in Allegany County, following orders issued by Harry Greenstein, State relief administrator, stopping all projects.

J. Milton Patterson, chairman of the Allegany County Welfare Board, said these persons would be placed upon direct relief until work could be resumed.

Relief Work Halted

Annapolis, Aug. 30 (AP).—Work-relief projects in Annapolis, Linthicum Heights, Glen Burnie and Fort George G. Meade, in Anne Arundel County, will be stopped as the result of the order calling for the cessation of such activity issued by the Maryland emergency relief administration.

David S. Jenkins, chairman of the Anne Arundel County board of welfare, announced that work relief under the old agency would end in the county at the close of the next pay week, September 5.

Staunton, Va., Aug. 30.—With the approval of city council, the school board will apply to the WPA for a $36,000 grant to erect a school building for Negro children. The city would have to put up $44,000.

Action was taken at this time because the deadline for filing applications is September 6.

Berger Report Denied.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Chambersburg, Pa., Aug. 30. — Members of the Democratic committee here denied today that the resignation of County Chairman John K. Berger had been demanded or acted upon at the meeting of the committee Wednesday night. It was also denied that any effort had been made to have D. Rumors both in Chambersburg and Waynesboro are to the effect that due to a disagreement in the party ranks, Berger had indicated he would present his resignation and Wishard was slated to succeed him.

Dr. Hall Lauds State's Colleges For Teachers

Virginia Schools Rank With Any in America, He Tells Graduates.

By the Associated Press.

Harrisonburg, Va., Aug. 30.—The worrk of teachers colleges in training public school teachers stands out as one of the greatest achievements of the educational world, Dr. Sidney B. Hall, State superintendent of public instruction, last night told 43 summer graduates of the State Teachers College at commencement exercises in Wilson Hall.

Dr. Hall traced the development of teacher training in America and said the Bridgewater (Mass.) Normal School could be regarded as the mother of such instruction. He emphasized that Virginia teachers' colleges hold rank with any in the land, both from the standpoint of liberal arts colleges and as teacher training institutions.

After giving the history of the normal school movement, Dr. Hall commented:

"Twenty years ago the General Assembly of Virginia stepped in line with the marching forces of education and established this institution, which has ben waging a winning battle ever since. It is to be recognized that teachers' colleges began as normal schools, but today they stand the equal of the best of liberal arts and sciences. As the teachers' college has added to its curriculum liberal arts and sciences, in turn, the liberal arts college has been adding professional courses, until today they stand alike in content and purpose with the evidence in favor of the teachers' colleges, insofar as method is concerned."

Dr. Samuel P. Duke, president of the Harrisonburg institution, awarded professional diplomes to 13 men and women and conferred bachelor of science degrees on 30 others. Those receiving degrees completed their courses in home economics, high school teaching and administration, and elementary teaching and supervision.

Nice Attacked As 'Dictator' In Paper War

W. R. Jones, Attorney for Ousted Board Men, Offers Charges.

Blank Resignations Put Under Fire; Warden's Case Resurrected.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Aug. 30.—Another link was added today to the long chain of consequences of the removal of two members of the paper-hangers' board.

Willis R. Jones, attorney for the deposed members, wrote Gov. Nice that the two men did not consider themselves removed. Furthermore, he wrote, they will continue to consider themselves board members until they are removed by "some orderly and lawful process."

Governor Attacked.

Jones' letter attacked the Governor's practice of obtaining what Jones called "vest-pocket resignations"—blank resignations signed before the appointee takes office. Referring to these, Jones said:

"I have been informed that your practice in this regard was initiated because your appointee to the very important office of director of the department of welfare declined to abide by your wishes for the removal of the very efficient warden of the house of correction to make room for a political appointment of your selection.

Hopes Outlined.

"Surely the people of Maryland, in electing you as their Governor, did not expect you to assume the role of dictator. I earnestly hope that, upon mature reflection, you will realize that your desire that there 'be no lack of confidence' in any board can never be accomplished through the continuation of this indefensible practice."

Jones was an assistant attorney general under a Democratic regime. The two board members were removed following charges that they made promises that contributors to a lobbying fund would be appointed to the board. The lobbying fund, $250, was paid to Maj. J. Purdon Wright, adviser to the Governor, for his services in advising the Governor to sign the bill.

Good Prices Seen For Export Apples

British Market Best, U. S. Expert Tells Growers.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 30.—Apple growers in this part of the country can expect good but not exceptional prices for their products this year, F. A. Motz, foreign market specialist of the United States Department of Agriculture, told orchardists at Crozet, this county.

Motz added that the market in England was particularly good this year. Most of the imported apples are eaten by the working classes, he said, which means that the prices cannot be excessive, if the market is to be satisfied.

The French market is not very good, he said, largely on because of political reasons. The crux of the situation seems to be that the French are disappointed in the quantity of wines United States is importing and are boycotting apples as a lever to make us raise our imports, he stated.

58 Graduated In University's Summer Term

Y. M. C. A. Director Delivers Address at Exercises in Virginia.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

University, Va., Aug 30.—President John Lloyd Newcomb conferred degrees last night on 58 graduates of the University of Virginia summer session.

The graduation address was made by William Kyle Smith, director of the university's Y. M. C. A. department, who spoke on "Convictions Essential to Maturity." The Rev. Henry Erving Batcheller, of Charlottesville, gave the invocation.

Smith told the graduates that maturity was not to be interpreted in terms of experience of age, but rather as the result of one's experiences when it is evaluated in the light of certain great convictions.

"It is therefore appropriate," he said, "for any group which advances the claim of being educated? Maturity means a clear grasp of the depth of life, of its will to power or expression, and the amazing range of expression with which this will to power clothes itself."

Following commencement ceremonies, a reception was given in Madison Hall for the graduates and their guests.

Bank Fraud Laid to Four; Jury to Act

Distiller and 3 Bankers Held on Charge of Embezzling $226,000.

Fenby T. Brown Placed Under $20,000 Bond; Records Sought.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Aug. 30.—Fenby T. Brown, president of the Harford Pure Rye Distilleries, was held for the Federal grand jury under $20,000 bond today on charges of conspiracy to embezzle $226,000 from the National Central Bank here.

Brown was held following a preliminary hearing before United States Commissioner James K. Cullen. Three other men, all former employes of the bank, waived preliminary hearing. They are held under bond for the Federal grand jury.

The Government failed today to obtain for examination the books of the Brown Securities Corporation, of which Brown was an official.

Books Held Out.

Subpenas issued for officers of the corporation brought them into the hearing room but failed to produce the books.

J. Edgar Richardson, secretary of the Securities Corporation, declined to testify on grounds that such testimony might incriminate him. He was instructed by Commissioner Cullen, however, to explain why he failed to produce the books and records.

He testified that he had searched for the records but could not find them.

Last June, Richardson said, the offices of the security corporation were moved to new quarters at Havre de Grace, at the same time offices of the distillery were moved there.

Mystery Hinted.

When the truck bearing the furniture and papers of both corporations arrived at the new quarters, Richardson testified, the security corporation's records had vanished.

In response to questioning by Assistant United States Attorney G. Randolph Aiken, Richardson testified that the truck bearing the furniture stopped at the home of Harry H. Hahn, former vice president of the bank, who also is charged in connection with the alleged embezzlement.

Desks Traded.

There, the witness said, a desk was left which had been "swapped for two desks which Hahn had at his home."

John H. Johnson, treasurer for the securities corporation, also testified that he had searched for the records, but that they had "simply vanished."

Hahn's bond was set at $20,000. Bonds for Earl L. Montgomery, former paying teller at the bank, and James B. McKeldin, former bank collection clerk, were set at $3,000 apiece.

Slot Machines Wrecked By Hagerstown Police

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 30.—Local police have begun destroying slot machines seized in the raid here Wednesday night. Some of the proprietors of establishments where the machines were seized looked on while the police went to work with hatchets and sledgehammers. Several had asked permission of the police to purchase machines that were taken in the raid, but State's Attorney Martin L. Ingram ordered them destroyed. Disposition of money found in them will be determined soon.

Police indicated that a test of the legality of claw machines, still in operation here, may be made at the November term of court.

Fire Routs Bus Riders Twice, But They Finally Make It!

Passengers Play 'Off Again, On Again, Finnegan' Through Night Between Baltimore and Philadelphia, Returning Once to Starting Point.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Aug. 30.—Thirty-one bus passengers reached Philadelphia today after twice having to leave burning buses.

One woman, Mrs. Irma Alexander, New York, sprained her ankle in jumping from one of the burning buses. Other passengers were not injured. Many of them lost their luggage, however.

The passengers left here late last night. Near Bel Air, Md., the bus caught fire and the blaze was extinguished by the driver and by passengers who threw dirt over the flames. A relief bus was sent to the scene.

The passengers transferred and resumed their journey. A short time later, however, the bus ran out of gas and the driver, short of cash, borrowed money from a passenger, purchased gasoline and the trip began again.

Near Oxford, Pa, the second bus caught fire and passengers made another hurried exit. Carl Kunin, Washington, carried his two children, Phyllis, 2, and Seymour, 5, to safety. George Kimball, Baltimore, walked some distance to a telephone and notified the Havre de Grace, Md., fire department. Firemen made the 27-mile run but the bus had been destroyed.

Maryland State policemen aided the marooned passengers in reaching an inn where they boarded a third bus and returned to Baltimore. Later they boarded a fourth bus and made the trip to Philadelphia.

Annapolis Club Resumes Fight On Road Plans

Rotarians Appeal to State Commission Again About Defense Highway.

By a Staff Correspondent.

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 30.—Another appeal to the State roads commission requesting the immediate formulation of a definite program for improvements of a "notoriously" inadequate Defense highway and advocating submission of the project to the Public Works Administration, was made today by the Annapolis Rotary Club.

The organization, through a resolution deliverd to the roads commission by Mayor Louis N. Phipps, termed the Defense highway "notoriously inadequate" for safe travel, and urged adoption of a program similar to one suggested by Senator Ridgely P. Melvin (Democrat), Anne Arundel County.

A club committee was also appointed to request Gov. Nice to allow the chamber of commerce use of the old Treasury Bureau for tourists. The 241-year-old building would be reconditioned and could stand among the historic landmarks open for inspection, it was said.

Williar Adds Criticism.

Baltimore, Aug. 30 (AP).—Harry D. Williar, jr., former chief engineer for the State roads commission, today joined the ranks of those who feel that the Defense highway needs widening and straightening.

Williar showed a copy of a report of the State planning commission made last March. He was chairman of the sub-committee on highways which said in the report:

"In view of the inadequacy of the traffic facilities between Washington and Annapolis, and of the potential traffic possibilities of this route, it is believed that a modern road between these cities should be included in a ten-year program."

Five persons were killed in an automobile-bus crash on the highway last week. Since that time civic organizations and State officials have joined in a movement for improvement of the highway.

Retired Builder Dies From Suicidal Wound

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 30 (AP).—Joseph Greenbaum, 70, retired Baltimore construction engineer, died in a Waynesboro, Pa., hospital to day of a self-inflicted razor blade wound in the throat.

Greenbaum was found early today in the basement of a Pen Mar hotel by Frank M. Cline, another guest at the hotel. He was taken to the hospital but died shortly after being admitted and Coroner A. W. Thursh, at Waynesboro, returned a verdict of suicide and held an inquest was not necessary. As the act was committed in Washington County, Sheriff Max C. Mallott will investigate.

In addition to the county applications, Baltimore city projects with a total cost of more than $500,000 were submitted to Washington today after approval by Dryden.

The projects forwarded today are in addition to several other groups approved and submitted this week. Four projects, among the first submitted some time ago, have been approved in Washington.

Nice Outlines G.O.P. Views On Campaign

Maryland Governor Hits 'Purchased Prosperity' of New Deal.

Republicans to Battle for Constitution and State's Rights.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 30.—A three-point Republican program in opposition to what he termed "purchased prosperity" of the present Administration during the 1936 campaign was predicted today by Gov. Harry W. Nice, of Maryland.

Th G. O. P., he foresaw, would campaign for "constitutional government," preservation of State's rights and vigorous opposition to New Deal policies.

The Maryland executive gave his views in an interview shortly before leaving Gov. Peery's mansion, where he visited overnight, for West Point, Va., to board the yacht Du Pont for the return trip to Maryland. Mrs. Nice was with him. Gov. Nice attended the convention of the Kappa Sigma Fraternity, of which he is a member, while here.

"Because it fails to inspire confidence," the present prosperity is "not stable," Nice declared. "It is purchased by the Government in Washington through lavish expenditures on experimentation," he charged. "The soak the rich policy is a poor one, as it is only the forerunner of soaking the poor."

The Marylander, mentioned as a prospective candidate for the Republican nomination for President, declined to discuss personalities in his own party but complimented Senators Harry Byrd and Carter Glass, of Virginia, as "real statesmen."

Sheriffs Ignore County Line Club

Robbery Unprobed in Tiff Over Jurisdiction.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 30. — The Swannonoa County Club so far has been unable to get either the sheriff of Nelson or Augusta County to investigate a recent robbery.

Swannanoa is situated atop the Blue Ridge Mountains just above Afton. The Augusta County line runs through the middle of the club. However, Swannanoa pays all its taxes in Nelson County, except for the property tax, which is paid in both counties. Therefore, the Augusta County sheriff insists that it is the responsibility of the Nelson County sheriff to investigate the crime.

However, the robbers entered the club from the Augusta side, committed the robbery there, and departed on that side. Therefore, the Nelson County sheriff holds that, taxes or no taxes, the crime is entirely on the Augusta side.

Meanwhile, the robbery remains uninvestigated.

Bucs Top Cards, 9-3, Cut Lead to One Game Over Idle Giants

14-Hit Attack Wins Ninth Straight

Pirates 6 Games Behind Leaders; Red Lucas Gives 7 Blows.

Vaughan Slams No. 19, Setting New Record for Pittsburgh.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 30.—The bold, bad Buccaneers of Pittsburgh again scuttled the league-leading St. Louis Cardinals today, shooting them full of holes with a 14-hit attack to win their ninth straight victory, 9 to 3.

The triumph put the fourth-place Pirates only six games behind the pace setters, whose margin over the idle New York Giants was reduced to a single game with their second loss here.

While Red Lucas duplicated Jim Weaver's Thursday feat of holding the Cards to seven hits, Floyd (Arky) Vaughan, league-leading hitter, established a new Pirate record by belting his nineteenth home run of the season and Paul Waner cracked out four blows, including a pair of timely triples, in five times up. Since Pittsburgh entered the National League no Pirate player had hit more than 18 homers in a year, and only Glenn Wright and George Grantham had made that many.

Lloyd Waner Hurt.

The Pirate cause suffered one setback, however, when Lloyd Waner suffered an injured leg as he slid into the plate in the first inning with the opening run. He caught his spikes in the dirt and was believed to have torn a ligament.

The Cards equaled L. Waner's run in the third, but the scoring flood swept Bill Hallahan out in the same inning, giving the Bucs three runs Lucas and Woody Jensen hit singles and Paul Waner brought them both home with his first triple, scoring a moment later on Vaughan's single.

After Joe Medwick's nineteenth boundary belt had brought the count to 4-2 in the fourth, fidgety Phil Collins took up the pitching task and did well, except for Vaughan's homer, up to the eighth.

Put Game on Ice.

Then the Bucs, still holding a rather shaky lead, followed up a fumble by Pepper Martin to score four runs and put the game on ice. Tom Padden followed the misplay with a double that sent in one tally, Jensen's two-bagger brought him home, then P. Waner came through with his second triple and scored the final on Vaughan's third hit of the game.

Kunes' 138 Leads In Canadian Open

Four Are Tied for Second, Six Strokes in Rear.

By the Associated Press.

Montreal, Aug. 30.—Young Gene Kunes, of Norristown, Pa., opened a six-stroke lead in the Canadian open golf championship today by firing a sub-par 68 that left the 27-year-old professional with a score of 138 at the end of the second round of the 72-hole play. The final 36 holes will be played tomorrow.

Tied for second place with 144 were Horton Smith, Chicago; Paul Runyan, New York; Tony Manero, Greensboro, N. C., and one Canadian—Lou Cumming, of Toronto. Smith and Cumming posted two rounds of 72 while Manero took a 74 after tying Kunes and Jimmy Hines, of Garden City, N. Y., for the lead yesterday with a 70. Runyan turned in a 71 to add to his first round score of 73.

Another stroke behind were Hines, Vic Ghezzi, Deal, N. J.; Al Watrous, Oakland Hills, Mich., and two Canadians—Arthur Hulbert, Toronto, and Gordon B. Taylor, Montreal, former Dominion amteur champion.

Giants Buy Oriole Star Moundsman

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 30.—The Giants took steps today to bolster their wobbling pitching staff and keep the club in the National League pennant race.

Bill Terry announced he has purchased Harry Gumbert, star right-hander of the Baltimore Orioles, and hopes to have the big fellow in a Giant uniform within the next two weeks.

"Baltimore won't let him go as long as it has a chance to get into the International League play-offs," said Terry, "and that won't be settled for another ten days, but it will help us a lot if we can have his help during the last two weeks of the National League season."

Nats Will Open Series Today With Boston

Harris, Griffith Confer; May Seek Walker and Cleveland Hurler.

THE Washington baseball firm, which weathered the depression in the West to the extent of clinging to seventh place, resumes operations at home today. With the hot breaths of the St. Louis Browns still uncomfortably close upon their collective necks, the Nats hope to put further distance between themselves and last place during the next two afternoons when they meet the Boston Red Sox here.

Fritz Ostermueller will go to the mound for the Red Sox today. The left-handed Ostermueller always goes to the mound when the Red Sox are playing the Nats on the hoary theory that the grist of left-handed hitters in the Nats' line-up makes the club a set-up for southpaw pitching, despite evidence to the contrary.

Whitehill to Start.

Earl Whitehill will pitch for Washington. The veteran southpaw, who was balked by the Browns in his bid for fifth straight victory, again has proven himself the most reliable of Bucky Harris' pitchers.

Harris held a long conference with Owner Clark Griffith yesterday, outlining plans for numerous trades, the foundation for which he laid during the club's recent Western tour. Outfielder Gerald Walker, of the Tigers, and a pitcher now with Cleveland are believed to be the object of Griffith's trading plans.

Miles Impressive.

Harris advised Griffith also that he is now definitely committed to Dee Miles as one of the club's regular outfielders. Miles' play in the West made a profound impression upon Harris, particularly his consistent hitting against southpaw pitchers, and the Chattanooga rookie will be retained in the line-up against all styles of pitching for the remainder of the season.

The Nats do not expect to acquire any rookie talent from Albany or Chattanooga for at least ten days, but Harris returned to find Jack Redmond ready to catch and Pitchers Henry Coppola and Frank Peticolas available on short notice. Redmond may be seen in the line-up today or tomorrow. Cliff Bolton's broken finger is expected to keep him out of the game no longer than another week.

Detroit Bows To Browns' Rally, 8-7

St. Louis Comes Back to Rout Bridges and Nip 6-Run Lead.

Scores Twice in Eighth, Breaking 6-to-6 Tie; West a Star.

By the Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 30.—While the rest of the American League idled, the St. Louis Browns upset league-leading Detroit, 8 to 7, by stopping a belated Tiger drive after staging a late-inning rally of their own.

After overcoming an early handicap, Rogers Hornsby's tailenders broke a 6-all deadlock in the eighth with two runs when Hogsett, who replaced Tommy Bridges on the mound, weakened and filled the bases with two walks and a high throw to first. Heath scored after Julius Solters' long fly and Lary followed him home when Pepper singled.

Russ Van Atta, the Brownie's fourth hurler, was sent in in the ninth after Thomas walked White. Cochrane then doubled, sending his teammate to third. With two men on base, however, the Browns' defense tightened. Pepper caught Gehringer's pop fly, and Carey threw out Greenberg as White scored from third. West broke up the game with a brilliant shoestring catch of Goslin's low line drive.

Bridges Drives in Three.

Detroit capitalized on the wildness of Sugar Cain and Jim Walkup to score six runs on as many passes in the early part of the game. After Cain walked Goslin, Fox and Rogell in the second, all three scored on Bridges' double. In the next inning Cain walked Cochrane and pitched three balls to Gehringer before leaving the box. Walkup then pitched a fourth ball to Gehringer and filled the bases with a pass to Greenberg. Singles by Goslin and Fox brought in three tallies.

Nation's Finest 2-Year-Olds Vie Today

17 to Clash at Saratoga; Open Bet Race Seen; Grand Slam Out.

By the Associated Press.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 30.—The ranking 2-year-olds of the turf, minus one, will attempt to get some place in their argument over the championship tomorrow when 17 of them clash in the thirty-first running of the Hopeful, the grand finale of the Saratoga meeting.

Only the absence of Grand Slam, victor in the Arlington Futurity and leading money winner of the division, will prevent the winner from claiming the juvenile title—at least until the renewal of the $100,000 Futurity at Belmont Park in October. The Detroit-owned speedster from P. A. Markley's Bomar Stable was shipped here especially for the event, but suffered a bruised foot in a workout a couple of days ago.

Wide-Open Betting.

Included in the field are the juveniles, which have been whipping each other in the Spa's rich preliminary stakes with almost every shift in weights. The Fighter, Sangreal, Coldstream, Red Rain, White Cockade, Bold Venture—all are entered in what is figured to be a wide-open betting race.

Mrs. Ethel V. Mars, owner of the Milky Way Farms, of Chicago, probably will send the favorites to the post in The Fighter and Sangreal. The Fighter came East with a record of four victories in five starts, three straight at Arlington Park, and then proceeded to show a clean pair of heels to many of the same colts in the Grand Union Hotel Stakes a week ago. Sangreal turned in a fine effort this week in preparation for the 6½ furlong test.

In the pre-race betting, however, Mrs. Mars' entry was the split choice with Coldstream from E. D. Shaffer's Coldstream Stud. Coldstream's claim to a position among the topnotchers is backed by a fine record at Belmont and Arlington parks and the dead heat he ran with C. V. Whitney's Red Rain in the Saratoga Special. Despite the dead heat and his victorious effort in the Flash Stakes, the Whitney flash is held at 6 to 1.

Three for Fitzsimmons.

James Fitzsimmons, veteran trainer, will send not the largest but a powerful entry to the post in Ogden Phipps' White Cockade, Snark, from the Wheatley Stable, and H. C. Phipps' Teufel. The distance in made to order for White Cockade, as the son of the distance-running Diavolo always has shown a tendency to come from behind in the stretch. The entry is held at 8 to 1.

Other top notchers, which may carry off the major share of the purse, include C. T. Grayson's Bold Venture, conqueror of Grand Slam last Monday, and J. E. Widener's Brevity.

Buddy Baer Won Unfairly, Fouled Doyle, Says Gallico

By Paul Gallico.

A Special Correspondent.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 30.—All kidding aside, fun is fun, and maybe you won't believe me, but I am of the opinion that Mr. Jack Doyle, the stricken bridegroom, also known as the Irish peacock because he sings so beautifully, ought to be given another chance. And, what is more, I think he ought to be given another chance with Buddy Baer. And if I could find some means of guaranteeing that Buddy would keep his punches up where they belonged I would pick Doyle to knock Buddy out. And what do you think of that? Oh, I know, I know (bitterly) that you think if I pick a guy he is a sure thing to get licked.

But up to the moment in New York's Garden last night when little Buddy hit him where he shouldn't, and then repeated the punch, I thought that the Irishman was doing right well, and might even have won the fight. He isn't at all shy about pegging that right hand and it staggered the big American. He isn't a bit scared.

He is plenty game and will certainly get up and fight as long as he is able, whether he is hurt or not, which, for instance, was more than our Mr. Levinsky cared to do in his recent brawl with Joe Louis. I am quite in favor of having Bear and Doyle rematched, and would cheerfully attend the affair (on a free ticket), because I don't think that Buddy won fairly.

I don't think that the big kid meant to hit below the belt. He was a bit on the confused side himself at the moment due to having been soundly thwacked on the jaw by Doyle, but the fact remains that he did and New York's "no foul" rule worked completely to his advantage as it always will in the case of big men who hit hard.

The rule is only unjust in that once you have lost the round by a low punch and there are a couple of minutes left, you might as well keep on hitting there, because there is no further penalty, and you weaken your man so that he is a cinch to knock out, either in the same round or later on. After the first low blow landed, Doyle never had a chance. The fight was funny but it also had its tragic aspects.

Doyle fought hard and cleanly and he wasn't fairly beaten.

It is no trick to knock a man out when he has been weakened by the effects of a foul blow, and don't let anyone tell you that a low punch delivered by a 238-pound heavyweight doesn't hurt. I would like to see those two big guys fight again, and I'm telling you my money (two bits) goes on Doyle. I will pick Doyle to give an average heavyweight of his own size an interesting evening. I like the way that Irisher lets the right hand go. He ain't kidding. There's nothing timid about it. He means to knock your brains out with it. I am a little disgusted with the business last night. I don't like to see guys cheated out of fights.

About a month ago I advised Baer's little brother to give up prize fighting and stick to developing his voice. At that time I merely liked his voice. Now I feel my sentiments sort of doubled because at this time I not only like his voice but I do not like his prize fighting. I don't think he fights good at all. I don't think he will ever amount to anything in the ring because he is a cinch to hit, he doesn't think quickly and he doesn't react quickly. He is clumsy and slow, and will wind up being just another big guy that fast, smart, little guys will slug around.

I am not pretending that Doyle would be any world beater, but at least he seems to know what it is about, is more nearly normal in size and movement, and could be taught. In the brief spell in which he was permitted to function he showed a fine driving right to the body as well as the cross to the chin. He hit Buddy under the heart with one that made the big guy gasp and back up. Really, they

Golden Rock II Wins Lincoln Race

Beats Salaam by a Neck, Pays $23.20 Mutuel.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—Golden Rock II, imported from South America and ridden by the Argentine jockey, Elmo Rodriguez, staged a spectacular stretch run today to win a surprise victory in the mile feature at Lincoln Fields.

Golden Rock II owned by C. W. Muller, an Argentine attorney, got little attention in the wagering, going to the post at better than 10 to 1. Taking command at the head of the stretch, Golden Rock II had just about enough left to withstand a roaring challenge by C. E. Davidson's Salaam, winning by a neck. Dokas, racing for C. S. Bancroft, was third. T. C. Worden's Mama's Choice, the favorite, was never a contender.

The winner paid $23.20 straight and finished in 1:38 3-5.

U. S. Net Play Is Delayed By Rain

Perry to Open Defense of Title Today; Budge Faces Hawley.

By the Associated Press.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 30. The weather man struck his first blow at the combined men's and women's national singles tennis championships today. As the result, the day's program of second round matches—16 women's and 32 men's—was postponed until tomorrow, when the veterans' championship also will start.

Interference by old Jupiter Pluvius is an old story here. Last year's men's championship was set back three days by rain and adverse elements caused the 1933 women's tournament to finish a week behind schedule.

It is unlikely, however, that today's cancellation will force the United States Lawn Tennis Association to end the tournament later than September 7, the scheduled closing date, since eight days remain to play out the tournaments.

Is Welcome Delay.

The postponement was a welcome break for the veteran R. Norris (Dick) Williams 2d, of Philadelphia, winner of the title in 1914 and 1916. Williams, who is in his forties, survived a five-set first round struggle against Barnard T. Welsh, young National Public Parks champion, of Washington, and he was scheduled to open the second round today in the stadium inclosure against big Roderich Menzel, of Czechoslovakia.

The Philadelphian, who was nonplaying captain of the 1934 Davis Cup team, could well stand the rest after his 53-game victory. Against the younger and more powerful Menzel, who is ranked among the world's first ten, it is improbable Williams will be able to continue his progress in the tournament.

Tomorrow's play will mark the opening of Fred Perry's defense of the crown he won in 1933 and successfully defended last year against a stern challenge from Wilmer Allison, of Austin, Tex. The black-haired Briton, who spent the day checking up on developments along Broadway, will meet Arthur S. Fowler, of Pleasantville, N. Y. It should be no more than a warm-up for Perry.

Budge Meets Hawley.

At the same time, the United States Lawn Tennis Association will trot out its main hope to break the Briton's title monopoly. He is Donald Budge of the flaming hair and

Final Round Reached by Mrs. Vare

Five-Times Titleholder Beats Miss Barrett by 2-and-1 Score.

Patty Berg Sinks Long Putt on 36th to Tie Miss Glutting.

By the Associated Press.

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 30.—Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, of Philadelphia, five times titleholder, became a finalist in the national women's golf championship for the seventh time since 1922 today by defeating Beatrice Barrett, Minneapolis, 2 and 1.

Patty Berg, 17-year-old Minneapolis sensation, was all square with Charlotte Glutting, of West Orange, N. J., at the end of their 36-hole battle and the two contestants went into an overtime session.

The little redhead putting genius dropped a 25-foot putt on the eighteenth for a birdie to square the match and send it into overtime.

4,000 Watch Match.

Both were off with pretty drives that split the fairway on the eighteenth. Charlotte's wood second was a beauty, barely missing the green. Patty's sliced and she was 10 yards off the carpet. She pitched 25 feet short of the pin and Charlotte rolled hers a little too boldly, 10 feet to far. As some 4,000 spectators packed around the green, Patty hitched her dress and dropped her putt, rolling it over a high mound. Miss Glutting's putt was a foot wide.

Glutting, in.... 455 355 545—41—82
Berg, in..... 456 346 444—40—82

Two down going to the ninth, Patty's second was half-subbmerged in water and her out was short and below the green. But she pitched up 40 feet below the pin on the wide green and sank her putt for a par 5, winning the hole and reducing her handicap to one down as Miss Glutting missed her second putt from 3 feet.

Mrs. Vare in Front.

A 15-foot putt for a birdie 3 gave Mrs. Vare the seventh to send her 1 up. The five times champion saved a half on the eighth, with a remarkable recovery. She hit her second into a trap and with a bad lie, just got out, but her mashie sent the ball a bare foot from the pin for a par. Glenna went 3 up by winning the ninth in par as Bea hooked her tee shot into trees that stymied her and forced her to play a safe, low out.

Vare, out .....543 544 355—38
Barrett, out .....633 535 456—40

Glenna, shooting straight par, ended the match with a 2-and-1 victory on the seventeenth as Miss Barrett overshot the green with her second to get a 5.

Detroit 35 Per Cent Better, Not 'Jittery,' Says Cochrane

By the Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 30.—Those same Detroit Tigers who carried the American League pennant into the world series last year are a 35 per cent better ball club this season, Mickey Cochrane, their manager, declared today.

Although the 1935 machine, far in front in this year's race, is the same organization that rocketed to the top last year, its efficiency is "way ahead, take it from Cochrane.

"Same personnel, yes," the manager agreed, "but same ball club? Not by a long shot. You see the same men have made up an entirely different team. That may seem paradoxical, but it happens to be true."

Cochrane recalled the last world series, which his team lost to the St. Louis Cardinals.

"We were pretty jittery, weren't we? Well, that was because only one or two of us had had world series experience." They were he and Goose Goslin.

"Now, if we are lucky enough to get in the series this fall you will find the 'jitteriness' all gone. Experience, my boy."

The Tigers, however, are not spending their world series money yet, except that part of it that was left over from last year. "No, we're not sure yet," said the cautious Cochrane. "True, we have a sneaking suspicion that we might, but in this game you never can tell."

Jakovia Lasts to Beat Dona Dulcin by Nose in Marlboro Feature

Filly, at 2 to 1, Piloted by Coffman

Close Finishes Thrill 6,000; Daily Double Pay-Off $17.20.

By Walter Haight.

JAKOVIA, a smartly-bred daughter of Sir Galahad III and Scarab which seems destined to earn her oats on the half-mile courses, drove to a nose victory in the Williard Purse, yesterday's Marlboro's feature race, "Held together," as the horsemen say, by Jockey Cecil Coffman, Jakovia had just enough left to take the decision from Dona Dulcin which, in turn, led Canteret to the wire by four lengths.

The filly, owned by Philmore Sanford, was one of "those things." She opened very ordinarily in the betting but a sudden plunge as the horses went to the post transformed her into a 9-5 shot on the approximate odds board and she finally paid a $6 mutuel.

Canteret in Front.

A crowd of 6,000 saw the contest over the six and half-furlong course. Canteret, in the favorite role, hopped out in front at the start with Jakovia second. The pair ran head and head to the middle of the backstretch where Jakovia shook off her filly companion.

With the field straightened out in the stretch, Dona Dulcin came like a fire horse and cut down Jakovia at every stride, but the move came too late for her win backers.

For the fourth straight day, racing was conducted over a fast track and under ideal conditions overhead. The absence of the usual "Marlboro heat wave" has served to swell the crowds and betting has picked up accordingly.

The daily double return was one of $17.20.

Lady Nymph Wins.

A paddock tip that forced the odds down to a shade over even money made good in the first race when Lady Nymph defeated juvenile non-winners of two races. The winner went to the front on the swing for the stretch and was never threatened thereafter. Dressmaker was second and Tuleyries Star third. The win pay-off was $4.10.

In one of the closest finishes seen at this track, Marge nosed out Our Ship in the second race, with Cora Kay third. Our Ship sailed to the front soon after the start and appeared set for an easy victory, but Marge began a drive under Edward's whipping that brought victory. Midway of the stretch, Marge began to move up on the outside, but when Edwards saw the leading Our Ship bearing out, he pulled his charge to the inside and barely got up in the closing stride. Marge paid $7.80.

Lodorus Triumphs.

The third race also was decided by the most narrow of margins, Lodorus hanging on just long enough to stall off the closing rush of No Mistake. Gagne was third in the field of eight. Jockey Shanks, on No Mistake, was reported to have lost his stirrup in the stretch. The winner, virtually left at the post last out, paid an $8.30 mutuel.

Playbook won the fourth race from Jane Ellen and Inscription to pay a $12.10 mutuel. Playbook took the lead on the backstretch and might have found trouble had not Inscription been carried wide by horses at the head of the stretch.

The sixth race proved a romp for Jambalaya with Ray Booker in the saddle. The gelding rushed into command the second time around and easily held Inflee and Arab safe to pay $17.

McDonald H. won the finale.

Wins 11th in Row.

JUDGE SCHILLING showed speed from the start, withstood determined early opposition from LORRAINE S., disposed of her, drew into a good lead and dominated the running to the end. GREAT HASTE, well placed all the way, made a determined effort to reach the winner when straightening out in the stretch, but was not good enough in the drive. LA JUNTA WHITE went to the front soon after the start, was rated along in front, saved all possible ground in the stretch and held DR. TRAPROCK safe at the end. The latter had early speed, came to the outside in the stretch and closed with a rush. WISE KING was prominently placed the entire way.

Dear Al: Marlboro Race Track.

Tom O'Donnell, the Washington restaurateur, will present a trophy to the winner of the sixth race today. The contest, which has drawn a good field, has been named the Griffith Farm, in honor of his new business venture on the Marlboro pike. Track officials have ordered an extra supply of programs in anticipation of a record crowd. One of my readers, perhaps the other, one (my wife reads it, I know) has put me on the pan very thoroughly for complaining about the starts at this track. She sends in the column with the charts attached and points out the fact that the charts said "Start good" on each race the day that I let the starter have the works. She accuses me of working up an alibi for my poor selections. The tone of the letter indicates that she knows her horses, which proves that she wasn't at Marlboro on the day in question. Just how four horses can be left at the post in one race and the start be termed "Good" I don't know, but the fact remains that I have nothing to do with making the charts. I wasn't trying to help the track when I criticized the starts and the majority of my picks that day had no excuses. Of course, I'm not averse to using a good alibi if I can locate one.

BILL.

First race—The chief strength in this field lies on the also eligible list. Amijo is the class. A winner here opening day, he seems suited. Keyed Up showed good form at Cumberland and is the one to beat. Irish Play and Pepper Patch are the best of the others. The last named was miserably ridden last out.

Second race—Tuleyries Wand and Sandfalon, winners at this track, should battle it out for this purse. Both are fit and ready. Hurdy Gurdy has a recent win in the books and gets in with only 103 pounds.

Third race—Mazyniata is the solid horse in this group. This one has worked well and should lead Follow On and Iwintoo, off recent races, the leading contenders. Hydro Girl is a possible longshot surprise.

Fourth race—Edyth M. had little chance last out as the race was run. Providing she gets a better start today I believe we will cash a ticket. Sea Finn's last was impressive. Evening Chimes to take care of the others.

Fifth race—Take Off, a fast breaker, may repeat his recent victory in this field. Picks up weight but I see no reason for mistakes. Jilted is the best of the others assured a chance to run but might be out of the picture if Canteret and Scotty Don get off the also eligible list.

Sixth race—Dunwin met with interference here the other day. Ran away with this kind at Cumberland and, if given clear sailing, should win. Miss Catalan is getting back to winning form. Valdosta for the show.

Seventh race—Holland is one that I've been watching closely. He was aired behind horses and on the outside of the field last out. Today may be the day. Buntino and This Play for the rest. Hot Cake is too hard to guess.

Curb Stocks Firm, Utilities Higher

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 30.—Curb market stocks displayed a steady to firm tone today, with good demand lifting a number of prominent utilities fractions to well over a point.

Trading volume dwindled to 181,000 shares, largely as a result of the absence from board rooms of a number of traders who began their holiday early.

Advances of about a point were recorded by American Gas & Electric, Distillers Corporation-Seagrams, Great Atlantic & Pacific and Lake Shore. Fractional upturns prevailed in Sherwin - Williams, Tric Bond & Share, Hiram Walker, Newmont Mining, Montgomery-Ward "A" and Swift International.

U.S. Steel Seeks To Gain Trade By Advertising

Engages Agency to Plan Selling Campaign for Products.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 30.—The United States Steel Corporation has decided to seek a larger share of the business in its industry through more active advertising activities.

This was revealed today with the announcement by the corporation that it has engaged the services of Batten, Barton, Durstine & Osborne, Inc., a large advertising agency, to act for the corporation and its subsidiaries.

In Wall street circles the corporation's decision to inaugurate a unified advertising campaign was interpreted as a departure from the extremely conservative selling and merchandising methods which it has pursued from the time of its organization.

The plan is believed to be in line with the policy of aggressive marketing activities forecast by the corporation's recent announcement of unification involving its two largest subsidiaries, Carnegie Steel and Illinois Steel.

Battle for Business.

Pittsburgh, Aug. 30 (AP).—The Carnegie Steel Co. announced today the appointment of James S. McKesson, of Cleveland, former vice president and general sales manager of the Corrigan McKinney Steel Co., as special sales agent to handle exclusively all sales of pig iron.

Simultaneously the giant member of the United States Steel Corporation announced it will "immediately get into production and mainain a sufficient stock of Bessemer, basic, malleable and foundry iron to be able to meet all requirements of the trade." McKesson will maintain offices in Pittsburgh.

The steel trade saw this as another move by the corporation to realign its forces for an aggressive battle against growing competition from the independents.

Decline Resumed By Wheat Prices

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—Wheat prices worked lower for the sixth consecutive session today in a typical preholiday trade, the hesitancy of operators finding support in uncertainty as to several market aspects.

Wheat was easy throughout the day, closing ¼-½ cent below the previous finish, December 88⅝-88¾, while corn was ⅛-½ higher, December 57-57⅛. Oats lost ⅛-½, rye ⅞-1⅛, and barley was 2 cents down to ½ up.

Cash interests were credited with bidding up September corn a cent above the pevious close at one time. The new crop firmed in sympathy, reflecting, too, fears of frost in the near future. Provisions were steady.

Stocks—Drifted higher in a quiet pre-holiday session. Utilities, specialties and selected rails absorbed most of the interest. Oils were unsettled while a score of pivotal shares also gave ground. Turnover off to 831,030 shares.

Bonds—Nervousness in the Federal list kept corporates on edge, although most other loans managed to creep up a bit higher. Some support arrived in the final hour. Italian obligations scored another rally. Transfers off to $8,862,000.

Curb—Shares displayed a steady to firm tone with good demand in some of the prominent utilities. Sales approximately 181,000 shares.

Grains—Wheat prices worked lower for the sixth consecutive session in dull trading. Range was narrow and confined mostly to readjustment of holdings. Wheat closed at 86⅝ for the September futures, corn at 71¼ and oats at 24¾.

Cotton—Quiet with irregular fluctuations. Early buying was promoted by overnight reports of large business in print cloths yesterday. Closes were steady at net 4 points lower to 6 points higher.

Coffee—Spot coffee was quiet. Santos, No. 4, last at 8¼, and Rio, No. 7, at 6½.

New York, Aug. 30 (AP).—On the basis of July statements reported by individual carriers so far, it is estimated that aggregate net income of class 1 railroads for that month fell short of fixed charges by about $18,000,000.

Such a result would mean a net loss after all charges for the first seven months of the year of approximately $78,000,000, according to current calculations.

Standard Power Output.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—Electric output of Standard Gas & Electric Co. for the week ended August 24, 1935, totaled 86,955,805 kilowatt-hours, an increase of 6.2 per cent compared with the corresponding week last year.

Highlights and Background Of Financial News and Trends

Stocks Hold Steady Tone in Narrow and Dull Trading—Government Bonds Halt—Foreign Currencies Decline.

By Carlton A. Shively.

New York, Aug. 30.—Financial markets gave a foretaste of an extremely dull time tomorrow and acted as though the holiday feeling were uppermost. Stock prices were mostly higher by small fractions at the close, with a small turnover. Government bonds failed to carry through their rally, which had in it some short covering. September wheat closed a quarter of a cent down at 86¾ cents a bushel.

Too many stock market traders were off for the holidays for the market to have much activity or price movements to have much significance. Money markets were more interesting. While brokers' loans declined sharply this week, the miscellaneous section of borrowing rose in this district and excess reserves expanded.

Small Borrowing.

It now develops that official estimates of the changes in reserve requirements to be brought about by the new banking act were a few millions out. It had been calculated that the requirement of a reserve against Government deposits would add slightly more to total reserve needs than reserve requirements would be decreased by allowing banks to deduct due-from-banks from total deposits in figuring their reserves. Actually, when the returns of the member banks were in, it was found in Washington that reserves set free exceeded the fresh reserves created. Therefore, while Treasury spending and other factors added $55,000,000 to member bank reserve balances, excess reserves jumped about $100,000,000.

Evidently some small banks in this Reserve Bank district were driven to the unprofitable expedient of borrowing nearly $2,000,000 from the Reserve bank to make good a deficiency in reserves, paying the Reserve bank 1½ per cent for the favor. Probably they had not figured on the necessity of allowing for a reserve against Government deposits so soon. If any of the larger banks had been deficient in reserves they would have purchased (borrowed) Federal funds, paying one-eighth of 1 per cent for the privilege. The increase in the miscellaneous and commercial loans of the New York city reporting banks may have consisted mainly of Federal funds transactions.

Bankers are considerably disappointed over the failure of commercial loans to show a seasonal gain. They are merely marking time, business using its large bank balances for such expansion as is taking place.

War Finance.

In foreign exchange the dollar moved sharply higher. As some of the gold currencies slid off to the lowest levels witnessed in some weeks the gold shippers began sharpening their pencils in anticipation of an opportunity for business in the exchanges during the next few weeks. Francs, which dipped under 6.61 cents abroad, were about 2 points above the gold shipping level. Guilders were only slightly above the bullion transfer point. Since The Netherlands Bank reserves to itself the right to provide gold in any form, even ancient and worn coin, the bullion point is not used as a common base for gold shipping calculations. Gold shippers figure on exchange at a point where it would pay them to take anything The Netherlands Bank had to give them.

Weakness in sterling at this season is natural, because of the commercial demand for dollars, but the drop in the gold currencies, grounded on the difficulties of deflation in the gold bloc countries, is aggravated by the war preparations. Italian currency in particular is regarded as especially shaky. That impression is heightened by the stringent nature of the war basis decrees just promulgated regarding profits, security holdings and exchange. Undoubtedly the Italian government is finding it a difficult matter to finance even the preparations for the fighting in Africa.

New Financing.

The stage is being set for another series of important bond offerings in October, rivalling in volume the output of early summer. Dozens of deals are being worked up and will be ready for filing with the SEC beginning with the second week of September. Numbered among them will be a scattering of issues representing funding of bank loans and therefore a net gain in the floating supply of bonds. The Anaconda deal will come under that head. The syndicate on that $55,000,000 issue will be formed immediately after the holiday.

Railroad Merger.

The latest railroad merger proposal will do nothing more than help to fill up a news column on a rainy day. Logical and what looked to be helpful mergers have been proposed in the past few years, and even received the blessing of the President of the United States; but they are as far from reality as ever. Railroad mergers are difficult to effect, because of the belief of each security holder that his security is worth more than the other fellow's. They are practical apparently only on the old basis, i. e., of creating new securities with inflated and fictitious values to be offered in exchange for the old. In other words, unless interested parties can boom the market, the old stockholders are not interested in mergers.

Pressure.

A great handicap to putting roads together on a common-sense basis, for the purpose of reducing expenses instead of merely to make a stock market play, is the attitude of labor. Employes see in a merger a money-saving combination of services that means reduced employment, as indeed it ought to. Merger of the railroads into a few strong systems and the scrapping of thousands of miles of line will have to come some day, but it will be possible only when labor is taken care of somehow and when strong political pressure is brought to bear on stockholders who refuse to think the ghost is up under the old scheme of things.

Stewart Berkshire Gets Revenue Post

The appointment of Stewart Berkshire, of El Paso, Tex., as deputy commissioner of Internal Revenue in charge of the alcohol tax unit, effective September 1, was announced last night.

Guy T. Helvering, commissioner of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, made the appointment with the approval of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau.

Mr. Berkshire succeeds Arthur J. Mellott, who has been in charge of the alcohol tax unit since its establishment. Under the appointment of the President, he will assume a position as a member of the Board of Tax Appeals.

Chief attorney of the alcohol tax unit during the past year, Berkshire previously was a member of the staff of the general counsel of the Treasury Department. He is 44 years of age and practiced law in El Paso for 18 years before coming to Washington in 1933.

Four Held Liable For $2,459,562

A. J. Drexel Biddle, Jr., Is a Defendant.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 30.—Four former officers and directors of Sonora Products Corporation of America, once known as the Acoustic Products Co., were held in a special master's report today to be "jointly liable" to the corporation to the extent of $2,459,562.

The four men named in the report, which was filed with Federal Judge Robert P. Patterson by Special Master Samuel H. Kaufman, were Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, jr., Percy L. Deutsch, Harris Hammond and Victor C. Bell.

The report, subject to confirmation by the court, was based on an action brought against the former officers and directors for an accounting of profits allegedly made in a DeForest Radio Corporation stock deal.

Copper Consumption Steps Up Briskly

The outstanding feature of the July statistics, says the Fitch Publishing Co., is the gain shown in world consumption amounting to 9,000 tons for the United States and a little over 6,000 tons for the rest of the world.

The survey states that, "although world production experienced an actual increase of 3,000 tons over the previous month, world stocks were reduced over 11,000 tons during July to a total of 570,000 tons."

McKesson Drug Co. Sales $63,296,723

New York, Aug. 30.—McKesson & Robbins, Inc., one of the largest manufacturers and distributors of drug and allied products in the country, reports net sales for the first six months of this year of $63,296,723 compared with $62,603,239 for the first half of 1934, an increase of 1.10 per cent. Combined profit from operations for the period totaled $832,110, after all deductions including fixed charges, compared with $1,055,194 for the corresponding period last year.

The decline in earnings was accounted for in part by the increased cost of sales, including an increase of over $400,000 in advertising expenditures for the period, which is expected to stimulate sales in the latter half of the year.

Federal Issues Wobble Lower In Bond Market

Losses Outnumber the Gains at Close of Trading.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 30.—U. S. Government bonds closed highly irregular in the bond market today. During most of the day they ruled considerably lower, after wiping out some early firmness.

The late buying was spotty. Those issues which received support advanced from 2-32 to 4-32 of a point on the day. The losses, which slightly outnumbered gains, ranged from 2-32 to 10-32 of a point.

Although the market had apparently recovered from its original nervousness for a time following the news of the poor results of Thursday's offering, renewed uneasiness was reported in some financial quarters over the intimation late yesterday that Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., might again resort to the offer of Government securities on a competitive bid basis.

There was still wide disagreement in Wall street with the opinion expressed by the Treasury head that the use of competitive bidding system had had nothing to do with the failure of the issue. The majority here remained firm that the auction system was unsettling to the marketing used frequently.

Bond experts were also concerned over the forthcoming October 1 refinancing of the remaining $1,250,000,000 of fourth Liberty bonds called for that date. Some thought that the failure of yesterday's offering would make necessary some postponement of the announcement of terms for the new offering, thus creating additional uncertainty in the market outlook.

While there was no expectation that the auction method would be employed on so large an issue, it was nevertheless regarded as unfortunate in bond circles that the Treasury should have misjudged its market on the eve of such an important transaction.

China Issues Order for War On Illiteracy

Mass Education of 480,000 Adults in Year Is Goal of Program.

By the United Press.

Shanghai, Aug. 27.—One of the greatest adult mass-education movements ever launched in the Far East is under way as authorities of the Chinese-administered areas of Shanghai wage war on illiteracy.

The goal is to teach 480,000 illiterate persons in Shanghai to read and write 600 of the most commonly used Chinese characters. Although the language comprises several thousand characters, 600 of these are considered basic; with them an adult Chinese can read newspapers, write ordinary letters, decipher street-car signs, etc.

With the official opening of the campaign, 220 mass-education schools opened simultaneously in all districts of the municipality of Greater Shanghai (that portion of the city lying outside the foreign settlements).

Truant Officers Appointed.

Learning to read and write the 600 characters is free, but compulsory. Truant officers have been designated to round up the adults who would "play hookey" from classes. Those who do not attend the school to which they have been assigned, or who miss any of their classes without valid excuse, will be fined between 20 cents and $5.

To avoid inconvenience or loss of working time, the schedule of classes has been arranged for all hours of the day so that all groups may attend during their leisure. Six classes of 50 minutes per day are scheduled, and all students will be graduated after two months' training.

Teachers Specially Trained.

Each of the 220 schools is conducted by a principal and teachers recently graduated from a special institute for mass-education training. On a basis of 300 students being accommodated every day, the 220 schools are expected to turn out 66,000 students at the end of the first term. Succeeding terms and additional schools soon to be opened will take care of similar numbers, and the entire group of nearly half a million illiterates is expected to be educated within one year.

Industrial Workers First.

Anti-illiteracy workers are concentrating their efforts at present on the industrial areas, as the approaching harvest makes it inadvisable to recruit farmers, but an intensive drive will be made in the rural areas later in the year.

Opening of the campaign followed two months of study, preparation, investigation and propaganda. The work is sponsored by a special committee organized by local government and Kuomintang (political party) organizations. Heading the drive are Wu Techen, mayor of Greater Shanghai, and Pan Kungchan commissioner of education.

Wages Are Raised At Sulphur Mine

Texas Firm Acts to Offset Higher Living Costs.

Freeport, Tex. (U.P.).—The Freeport Sulphur Co., one of the largest sulphur producers on the gulf coast, has granted a 5-cent hourly wage increase and raised the number of working hours from six to eight daily.

More than 400 employes were affected by the action which adds several thousand dollars to the monthly pay roll.

Superintendent E. H. McFarland said the increases also applied to the company's employes at Grand Ecaille, La. The minimum wage scale under the new arrangement is 60 cents an hour.

During the depression, the company continued operations, although sulphur had been mined to meet demand for several years.

Employes were given plots, and at one time more than 500 were under cultivation. The company instituted a pension plan of retirement and contributed a community house and golf course to its employes and the community.

"The management has been aware of the fact that the trend of living costs has been upward during the past year or more," McFarland said, "and the wage rate is offered to compensate for this increased cost of living."

Marine Corps Bans Landlubbers on Ships

Philadelphia (U.P.). — Landlubbers can't find a place in the Marine Corps, according to Maj. E. T. Lloyd, who is recruiting officer in the Customs House.

Lloyd said one-fifth of the Corps serves aboard United States battleships and cruisers.

"A man is expected to know the ropes before he is assigned to duty," the major asserted. "For that reason we maintain sea schools for Marines on the East and West Coasts."

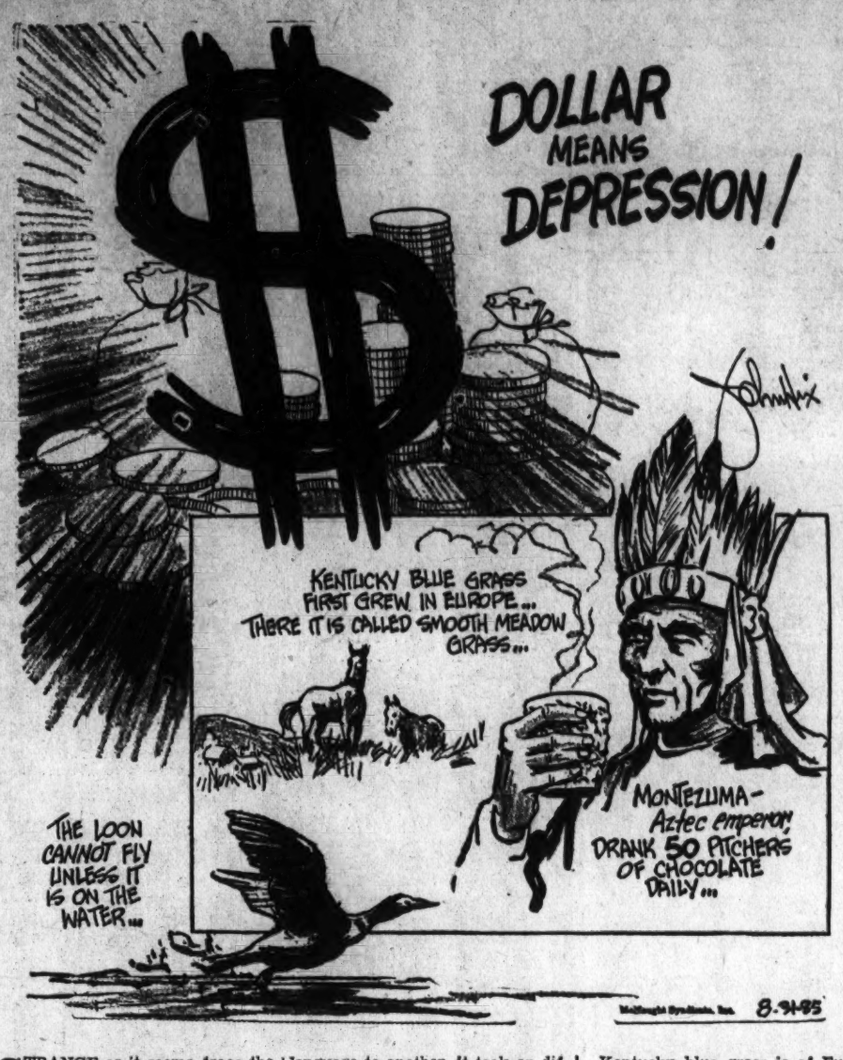
Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

For further proof address the author, inclosing a stamped envelope for reply. Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.



STRANGE as it seems, trace the ancestry of our dollar and you find it means depression. It comes from the word "thaler," meaning valley or depression.

The first coin from which we get the word "dollar" was minted in Bohemia in 1516 by the Count of Schlitz. These coins bore an effigy of St. Joachim, and were known as Joachimstalers or schlichenthalers. They were equal to one gold gulden. Eventually, they came to be known simply as thalers, and as the word migrated from one language to another, it took on different spellings. It was known variously as the tallero, the daler, the dalar, the daalder, and eventually as the dollar.

The loon is strictly a seaplane type of flier. It must taxi over the water before it can get into the air. On land, its short, awkward legs will not carry it fast enough to start a flight—but in the water these same legs kick it along with ease until it has momentum enough to take off.

Kentucky blue grass is of European origin. It was called smooth meadow grass there many years before it was first planted in the United States. It became famous in Kentucky where climate and soil conditions brought this grass to its highest development.

Recently Kentcuky blue grass moved another step West when it was introduced in the Hawaiian Islands. A wide belt of blue grass, planted from Kentucky seed, is now growing around Mauna Kea, highest island mountain in the world.

TAKE NO CHANCES—TEST YOUR BRAKES
You still have time before your Labor Day week-end to have your brakes tested free of charge.
